FOREVER IN OUR FONDEST MEMORIES WILL REMAIN THOSE VIVID
PICTURES OF OUR FOUR YEARS ON THIS CAMPUS - - - -

Bewildered and puzzled, yet inspired and determined, we as Freshmen enter the doors of Woman's College. Loaded down with baggage full of things we don't need but just couldn't leave behind, we settle in a room with a stranger. The dorm becomes home to us when the counselor hands us our room key with a few welcoming remarks. The stranger who shares our dresser soon knows as much about us as Boswell about Sam Johnson. Before we realize it, we are in the midst of the hustle and bustle of classes, bull sessions, dances, and all the things that make college a busy life. The nightmares we had over our first examinations prove to be foolish. The professors who are supposed to be fearful objects turn out to be real people who are ready for our friendship and who always welcome us to their homes. Years roll by like a calendar flipping away in the movies. Suddenly we realize that we are Seniors and that four years of happiness and preparation are almost over.

A PASSPORT TO INDEPENDENCE

To use a platitude—"Graduation week is one we shall always remember." Things and people we see everyday become dearer to us. We somehow forget all of our headaches and only the bright events stand out as we look back over our W. C. days. We joke to each other about coming back the next year to fulfill our wildest dream: to spend the night in the lovely bedrooms of the Alumnae House. With the sadness of departure in our hearts mingled with the thrill of facing the future prepared, we leave W. C.

Students AND Faculty SOCIALIZE"

We pride ourselves at W. C. on our faculty — not just because they are learned people but because they are our friends outside of the classroom.

Feeling just as much at home as Runt, the Scottie, the History Majors meet at Dr. Kendrick's home for fun and discussion. . . Not school room duty but all for the sake of Gamma Alpha, Mr. Crawford talks things over with some of the club members. . . Faculty members are always invited by some of the students to formal dinner before a concert (Mr. Dickieson here.)

. . . When there's a tea at the Home Management House, students and faculty sip together. . . Away from it all for a week-end off campus at the A. A. Camp, students and faculty rough it together. (Looks serious here.) . . . We frequently have the chance to step on the faculty's toes. (Root and Dr. Bunting.) . . . Mr. Clutts, beloved for his friendliness, stops and passes the time of day with two students.

Head of the Department of Education, Woman's College, 1918-1941

IN MEMORIAM

Dr. Cook was the master teacher, putting into practice the powerful philosophy in which he believed and to which he gave his life.

His loyalties ran the gamut of his whole experience. He was loyal to his home, to his family, to all his people. He was loyal to the church, to the communion, and to the particular church which he served so well. He was true to his friends. He was loyal to the Woman's College, which he loved, and to which he gave the best years of his life. He was loyal to his profession. To him it was a high one. He was proud of it, gave himself completely and wholeheartedly to it; defended it, dignified it; and proved his devotion by continuous, disinterested and effective labor.

He was tolerant of the opinion of others. He lived happily, worked joyously, and left a comforting heritage of rich experience, friendship, and work well done. He had a large, wholesome, liberal view of life. He had faith and courage and industry. His life is greater than the sum of its parts.

We will remember him not so much for any given word, or act, or accomplishment, as for the total impact of his whole personality.

DEDICATION

We lovingly dedicate the 1941 PINE NEEDLES to Miss Harriet Elliot, our Dean of Women.

We have always been proud of Miss Elliot, but this year our pride rose to new heights when President Roosevelt asked her to be the only woman member of the Defense Commission. She is the living example of the ideals of womanhood that she has instilled in us. We humbly pay respect to one of the greatest and most outstanding women of our day.

Nineteen Forty One

There's a well worn path to New A now.

The link with the past: old hose house.

Familiar? You bet! "See the gold fish?"

Close to our hearts is the home of Dr. Jackson.

Library Lingo of a Freshman: "Is there a dining room in this building?"

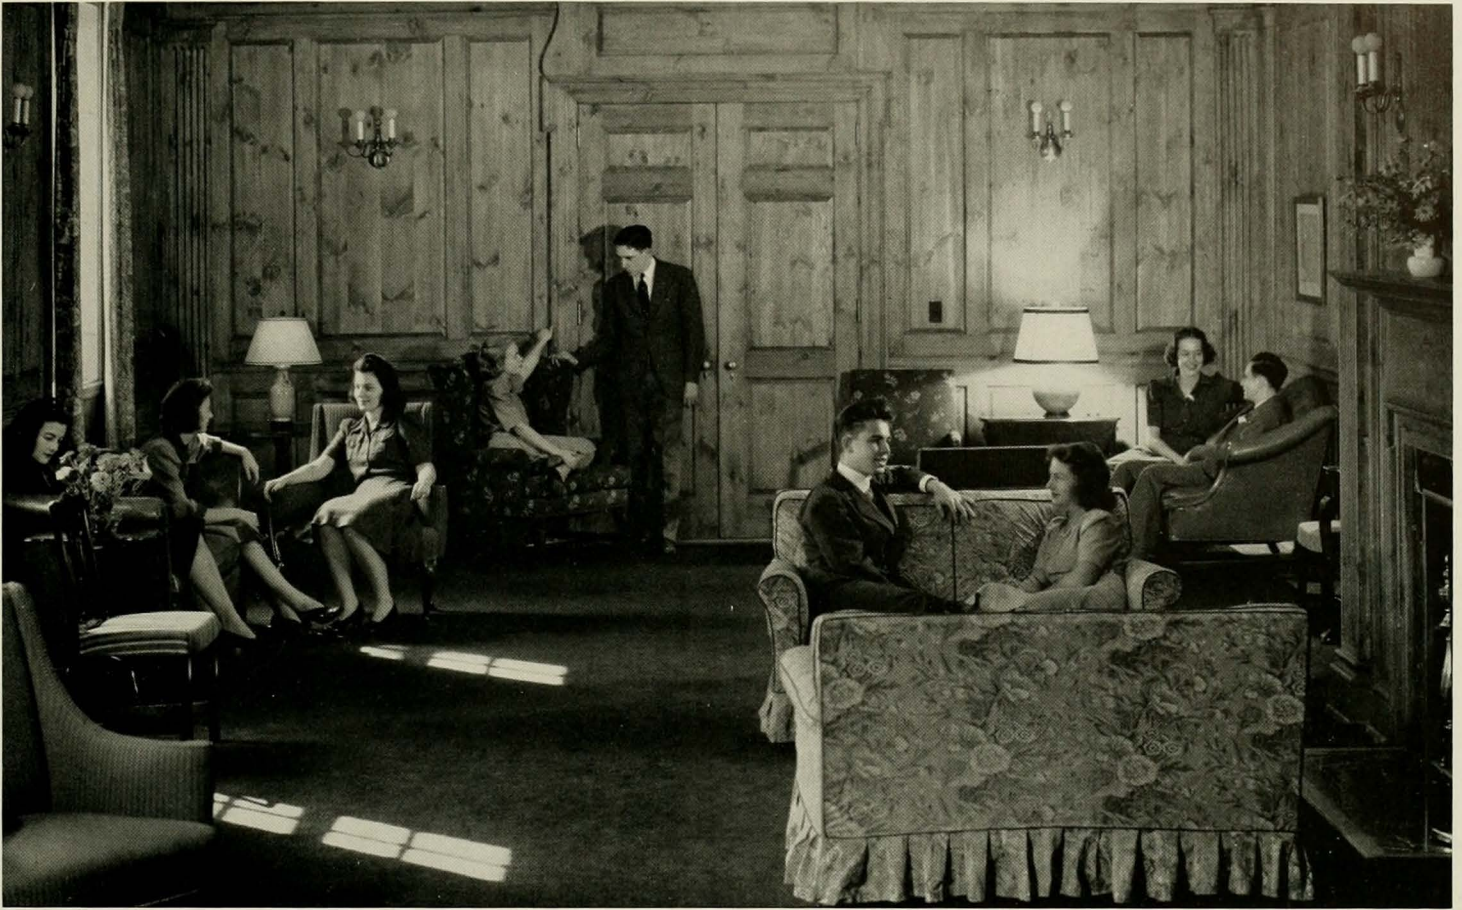

The theoretical becomes practical in the Home Management House.

The "Y" hut . . . an open fire. . . visions in the flames.

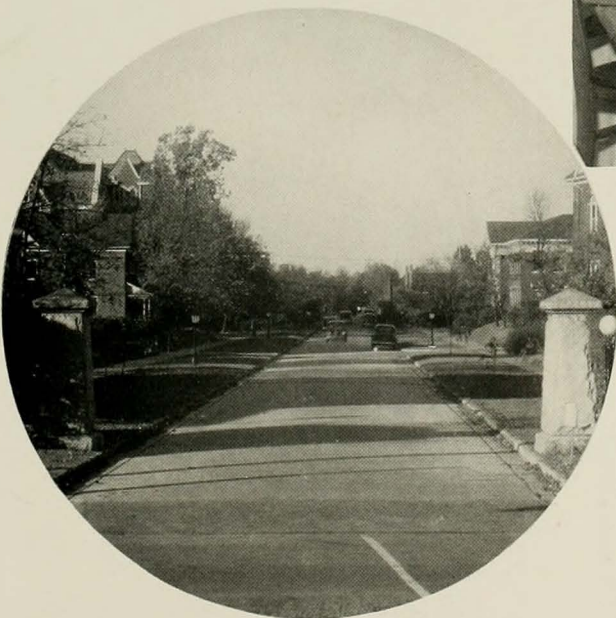

Imports from nearby colleges add contrast to our social life.

A "Ferdinand Session" tuned to the click of knitting needles.

Two stone pillars mark the entrance to Woman's College.

"Those who guide us"

The faculty entertains its new members.

GOVERNOR J. MELVILLE BROUGHTON

GOV. J. MELVILLE BROUGHTON

Ex-Officio, Chairman

In a speech to the Seniors and Alumnae of Woman's College, Governor Broughton humorously said that his reason for running for governor of North Carolina was to be asked to visit the campus of Woman's College.

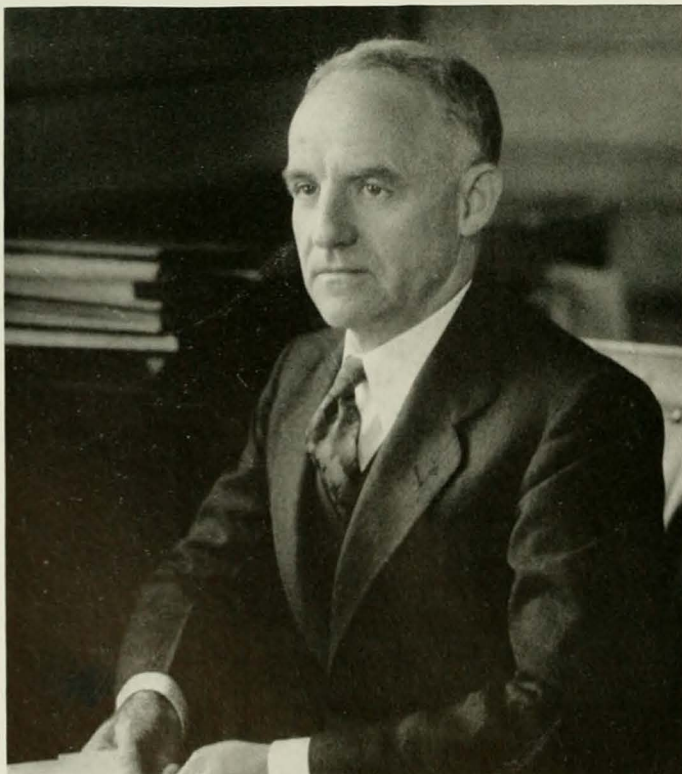

We feel proud to recognize Governor Broughton as Chairman of the Executive Committee of the University of North Carolina. His first legislature passed the Teacher Retirement Act which will be a boon to a large majority of the graduates of this school.

Governor Broughton is very enthusiastic over the new fields open to the women of the United States. His sincerity in the advancement of education for women was manifested in his backing the bill for extra appropriations to the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina.

DR. FRANK PORTER GRAHAM

DR. FRANK PORTER GRAHAM

President

Ten years ago Dr. Frank Porter Graham tried his best to side step the presidency of the University of North Carolina; he wanted to continue teaching. However, he accepted the position with reluctance, and the same traits which prompted him to remain a teacher have made him the capable and popular president that we know.

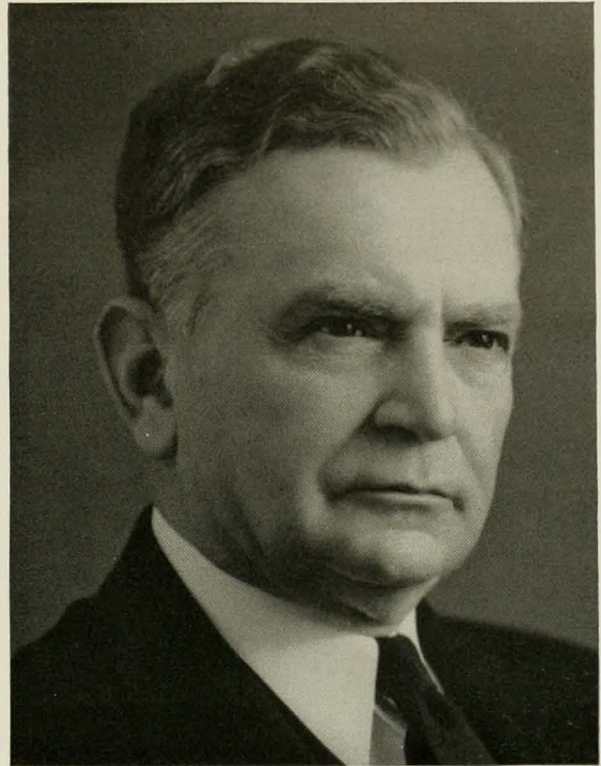

He was not interested so much in acquiring degrees or titles or in making detailed studies of antiquity as he was in studying his students and in making his courses live for them. Simplicity and sincerity are his outstanding characteristics. These qualities and his unflagging interest in his students and in the University as a whole make him the man we love, Dr. Frank Porter Graham, President of the Greater University of North Carolina.

ADMINISTRATIVE OFFICERS

DR. WALTER C. JACKSON

Our Dean of Administration is one of our best friends on the campus. Dr. Jackson is a remarkable personality; he always has time to listen to our troubles and to congratulate us on our successes. His charm, his personality, his ability to understand college students are just a few of the things that make Dr. Jackson beloved and respected by all.

Dr. Jackson is always ready to advise and capably takes a situation into his hands if he deems it necessary; but he has a remarkable facility of stimulating initiative in the students to manage their own responsibilities. His belief in a true democratic student government always prevails.

DR. WALTER CLINTON JACKSON

MISS HARRIET ELLIOT

We have been willing to share Miss Elliot this year only because she is serving her country as a member of the Defense Commission. Miss Elliot has absolutely dispelled all of our fears about the cold impersonality of the typical dean of women. She has a warm heart and a place in it for every girl at Woman's College. Although Miss Elliot has been doing the almost superhuman task of holding two major positions, she has found the time to come back to our campus often this year. She has been aided by the counsellors and Miss May Lattimore who have assumed added responsibilities.

Our Friends THE FACULTY

During our four years of college life, our faculty has befriended and guided us throughout the devious paths of education. Everything from English novels and history dates to the antics of white rats has been presented to us in a concerted effort to round out our cultural background and increase our appreciation of life in general. Obviously, it now becomes our duty to show our gratitude by trying to live up to what they have taught us.

Our association with "our betters" has not been merely as note-takers in the classroom as this annual proves. Besides formal teas and receptions and such, most of us will carry away with us pleasant memories of after-dinner coffee at the homes of many of our faculty. How many of us have been favored with the famous cheese biscuits and eagerly begged the recipe from one instructor? How many have been oddly surprised and pleased by the combination of Chinese fruits and ice cream in the home of another? How many authors and books have we learned painlessly in amusing games? For all of us these will be among the dearest recollections of our college life.

Through the mazes of eight hectic registrations and getting majors and minors unraveled, they have led the seniors. From the first confused registration as bewildered freshmen who weren't quite sure what it was all about, to our sigh of relief with the last signature on our senior program card, we marveled at our advisers who seemed to know unerringly exactly what we had to take when. With such turmoil surrounding them, their calm understanding of our problems has been a continuous source of amazement and thankfulness on our part. We can thank them for remembering their undergraduate days and trying to arrange those blissful mornings without eight o'clock classes. We have them to thank for Saturdays when we could sleep until twelve. And what college girl can say that she doesn't snatch all possible moments of rest?

We meet our faculty in the Junior Shop for conferences. We learn that one professor has been watching women knit so long that he is an expert critic of the best techniques involved. We learn which professors do not consider knitting a substitute for notes and we respect their opinions. We cheerfully tuck our needles and yarn away to bring them out in other classes. We argue the fate of the world in open forums in the Halls with a professor as chairman. We lounge on sofas and chairs, the floor or whatever we can find, and seriously consider current events. We become better citizens for these discussions pro and con of situations on and off campus. We are learning every minute of our daily life.

And so, we proudly present our faculty. Not, perhaps, a combination of all the virtues; but a group of friendly people, interested in us and our problems as individuals and en masse.

First, may we introduce Dr. McKee Fisk, head of the department of Secretarial Administration.

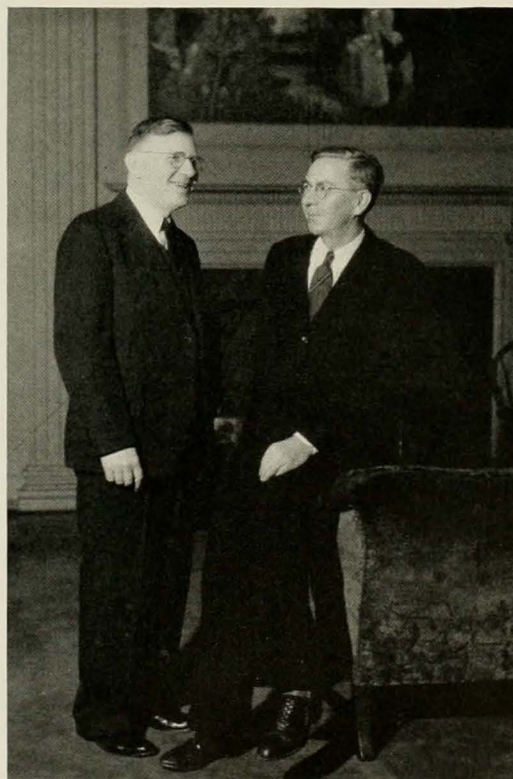

FISK

Dr. B. B. Kendrick, head of the History department, feels that, as in other years, the department's main objective is to instill a knowledge of the finer points of history in those who elect to study in this field. As in other departments, plans are being laid to celebrate our fiftieth year. The contribution of this department and that of the department of Sociology under Mr. Glenn R. Johnson in collaboration with others, such as Philosophy, is to be a book of essays. The book will be published under the editorship of Miss Vera Largent.

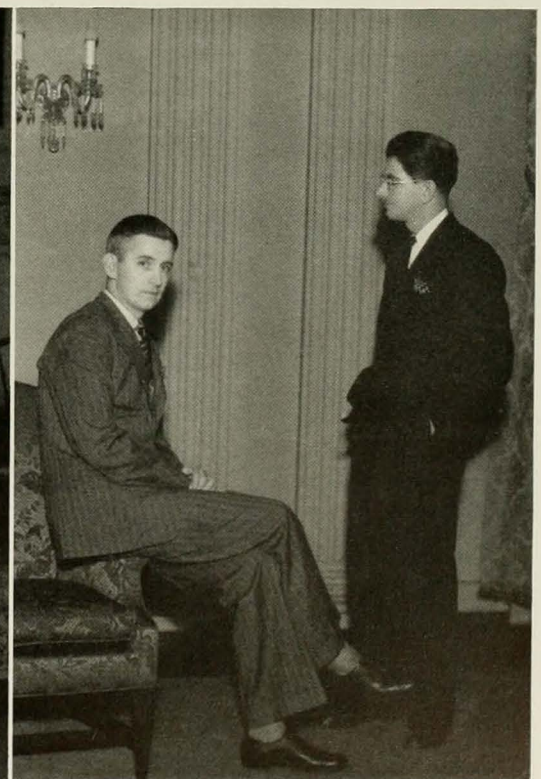

Mr. George M. Joyce heads the Commercial department which gives a one-year course in what the better secretary should know.

The Art Gallery has become an institution of the Art department under Mr. Gregory D. Ivy. The special summer course offered at Beaufort under his direction is unique among southern schools. There students work hard to master technique and acquire a sun tan. Another innovation is the class in Advertising and Display in which the girls betake themselves to town and actually decorate shop windows in order to put their theories into practice. Never let it be said, however, that the department omits the traditional art work, for it doesn't.

ALTVATER

Under the direction of Miss Florence L. Schaeffer, the Chemistry department has now been comfortably settled on the third floor of the new Science Building for nearly a year. Only those of the department who worked under the crowded conditions and inconveniences of the old quarters can properly appreciate the many advantages of the new location.

Dr. Albert Keister heads the Economic department, a strange mixture of the practical and impractical. We can call it PRACTICAL because it teaches the student some of the operations and procedures of the business world; and, yet, IMPRACTICAL because it criticizes some of the things that business does, and dreams of improvements that might make a better business world.

Like many other departments Philosophy has moved to new quarters. Dr. John A. Clark is responsible for the expansion and for the addition of new courses.

To Beaufort, too, go students of Zoology to study there marine life. Dr. John P. Givler, head of the department of Biology, is particularly interested in the development of a biological garden in Pea body Park.

An integral part of our college life is the series of concerts sponsored by the School of Music headed by Dean H. Hugh Altvater.

It is to the Infirmary and Dr. Ruth M. Collings that we go for our "flu" and rest. By our freshman and senior exam she knows us. Handicapped by not having a "lab" and technician of its own, the Infirmary is planning such an extension.

Mr. O. P. Clutts heads the committee taking the place of the late Dr. John Cook of the Education department. A familiar sight to everyone on this campus is Curry Training School where 269 senior teachers this year are getting their practice hours. Not a selective, but a normal group of children go through the primary and grammar grades and high school here. Included in the department is a summer school in which the "workshop" idea has been initiated for teachers with problems. In this plan are included observation and participation.

Added facilities and enlarged space for teaching provided this year to our Psychology department has given rise to unprecedented progress in experimental testing and research work in this department headed by Dr. James A. Highsmith. Interest is taken particularly in the problems of children and in adjusting work to the needs of individuals.

Miss Caroline Schoch heads the smallest but active German department, a deservedly popular language for its great literature.

The Classical Club is one of the most important phases of Dr. Charlton C. Jernigan's work. Interest in the field is evinced by the fact that our Classical department has one of the largest enrollments in the state.

JERNIGAN

Under the leadership of Miss Margaret Edwards, the Home Economics department has expanded its enrollment in the past few years, and is meeting the ever-growing demand for its graduates. Home Economics majors are extending their fields of service and going into many more professions than ever before. To honor our anniversary in a more elaborate way, the department has postponed the annual Open House until next year. More and more emphasis is being placed on the graduate program and staff and facilities are increased.

Every freshman knows the Hygiene department. Under Dr. Victoria Carlsson, this is one of the first requirements the new student meets. This year it is increasing its services to meet the needs of girls preparing for primary and grammar grade education.

The English department, bereft of a head by the retirement of Dr. Smith, has been directed by a committee composed of Dr. Leonard B. Hurley, Miss Jane Summerell, and Mr. George P. Wilson, who labor under the constantly increasing conviction that the sum of the parts is not equal to the whole.

Dr. Calvin Warfield heads the Physics department which has moved this year to the new Science Building as Chemistry is. In the midst of getting apparatus settled, the department is trying to plan exhibits for our fiftieth anniversary. An addition to the staff this year has been Dr. Hedwig Kohn who came to us from the University of Breslau.

Under Dr. Winfield Barney the department of Romance Languages has experienced a boom in the popularity of Spanish. More and more girls are lisping the soft Castilian "c" in recognition of a beautiful language. It is growing "populärer and populärer".

Math plays an extremely important part in our life, both in college and out of it. What should those poor souls who can't even count correctly do? The solution is to carry your problems to the Math department and Dr. Helen Barton where you will become more conscious of the finer points concerned.

All information about the Physical Education department, under the direction of Miss Mary Channing Coleman, may be found in the catalogue. For information about the Athletic Association and clubs, see the Athletic Section of this Annual.

Editor's Note: All information for the write-ups of the departments was secured from the head of each department respectively.

FINANCE BOARD

The Finance Board is that audacious body that all business managers of publications, treasurers of student organizations have to face with budgets in their trembling hands at the first of the school year. To their surprise they find this group of people intuitive and generous (as the funds permit). Of course, for the "B. M.'s" it's necessary to be on the up and up where and when the money is going. BUT it's the duty of the Finance Board to see to that and make allocations accordingly.

HONOR BOARD

As a result of the proposal of the establishment of the honor system at the college, the Honor Board has an increased importance in our campus life. W. C. has never had the complete honor code although there has always been a great amount of our conduct left to our integrity. At present the Honor Board considers cases of academic dishonesty. The Board is made up of three people from the Judy Board appointed by the Student Government President and three faculty members appointed by Dr. Jackson.

Nineteen Forty One

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

The one unit of organization in which every girl at W. C. plays an important part is the Student Government Association. The "S. G." touches every phase of college life; but most important of all, the Student Government stands for democracy which is an integral part of Woman's College.

The officers for 1940-41 of this association were chosen by Australian ballot in May of 1940. A mass meeting (attendance required!) was held at which time the new officers and house presidents were sworn in, and the entire student body renewed its oath to uphold the principles of the Student Government. For the remainder of the school year, the new officers under the experienced guidance of the old began to take over the controls of the complicated machinery of "S. G."

In a coordinated system the Jury Board handles cases and reviews Hall Board decisions; the Legislature considers and works out rule changes to be made; the social chairman, elected by the Legislature lays plans for the new program.

In order to gain ideas and contribute to other schools, delegates were sent to the State Conference at Chapel Hill and to the Southern Conference at New Orleans.

Before September brought a fresh crop of new students, a conference was held of the Student Government officers and the campus leaders to discuss problems of the last school year and necessary changes for the coming year.

Orientation week which follows isn't as bad as it sounds. During this period the Freshmen become acquainted with their part in Student Government through Blue Book tests and other means.

Football season brings all three parts of the University — Carolina, State, and W. C. — together on Greater University Day. Carolina and State root in the mud (it always rains) for a pig-skin victory while W. C. overflows the grandstand. We might have a blue or a red ribbon on our chrysanthemum, but in either case we ARE proud.

As this goes to press, the campus is rift with PROS and CONS of the proposed honor system by the Student Government.

LEGISLATURE

LEGISLATURE

Annie Braswell, Vice-President of Student Government, is chairman of the Legislature which meets on call in order to extend privileges or change rules as issues arise. It is a true democratic organization conducted by student members. One of the many duties of the Legislature is the responsibility of conducting elections. This year they have tried to cope with the problem of election among a student body that numbers over two thousand. Their solution was to impartially publicize the candidates for office so everyone would know for whom she was casting a vote and what their qualifications were.

JUDICIAL BOARD

This august body sits in weekly trial of rule infractions. Working in a coordinated system, it reviews cases that are reported by the Hall Boards which handle minor infractions. The members are appointed by the President of Student Government who is chairman. Miss Alexander was elected faculty adviser. Instead of the severity and sternness that usually accompanies black robes, we find complete understanding and sincere cooperation.

Nineteen Forty One

" And we do have to Study

-- a little anyhow"

IN THE PURSUIT OF KNOWLEDGE

The academic side of W. C. is composed of many varied and interesting phases. Above is one of the most unique on campus: Miss Peterson's art laboratory in which the students are designing miniature rooms and making their own furniture. . . . Below is a familiar scene in the Library where term papers are prepared, outside reading is done, notes are taken, and sometimes just study in general is tackled.

In Dr. Barkley's Psychology laboratory we learn why we do what we do. . . Sometimes it's student teaching. (It's fun, really.) . . . When we reach a snag we consult our professors who are always ready to help as Dr. Bunting is here. . . At last we wind our weary way to our rooms to delve in more knowledge.

"It's Great to be a Senior!"

We've been warned about those storm clouds in the east; we've been challenged by world leaders as being a generation with a doubtful future. So what! Every class of '41 is proud to accept the warnings and the challenges. We look to the future—so soon to be our present—with not only ideals and inspirations, but also with the ability to smile. This ability comes from what is proudly called four years of valuable experience on a democratic and inspiring campus. We have the answer in our hearts to the criticisms we meet today on every side. The years, 1937-1941, spent at Woman's College are of great significance in our lives and to the choices we will be forced to make. Every girl has personally felt the challenge and the privilege of learning to live as you would have us live. Today and tomorrow, we stand: STEADFAST OF PURPOSE.

There was that drowsy autumn back in 1937—the beginning of our awakening. Did we start with an awe-inspiring purpose! Un-huh, we hitched our wagon to said star—graduation in '41. Commencement—no we're not afraid, we're even confident.

We take this opportunity to thank Dr. Shivers, Class Chairman and official booster, for a great part of our success and happiness. Her work seemed always a pleasure; and no member of the Class of '41 leaves without a sincere feeling of gratitude to her, our friend and adviser.

Will we remember? Bull sessions—source themes—fourth periods on Saturday. Could we forget? Student teaching—purl-one-knit-two—comprehensives—diplomas!

Life in an Upper Classman Hall

Partying, Purling, and Prattling

Oh, for the life of an upper classman—when lights don't have to be out at eleven—when there's no longer that bug-bear closed study—when most of the waking hours aren't spent "nose in a book" fashion. Yes, it has its advantages.

Hallowe'en in Kirkland and a party fit for Orson Wells. We haven't figured out yet just what some of the girls represented.

Serenade on a terrace . . . not the troubadour style 'cause the girls went down and joined them.

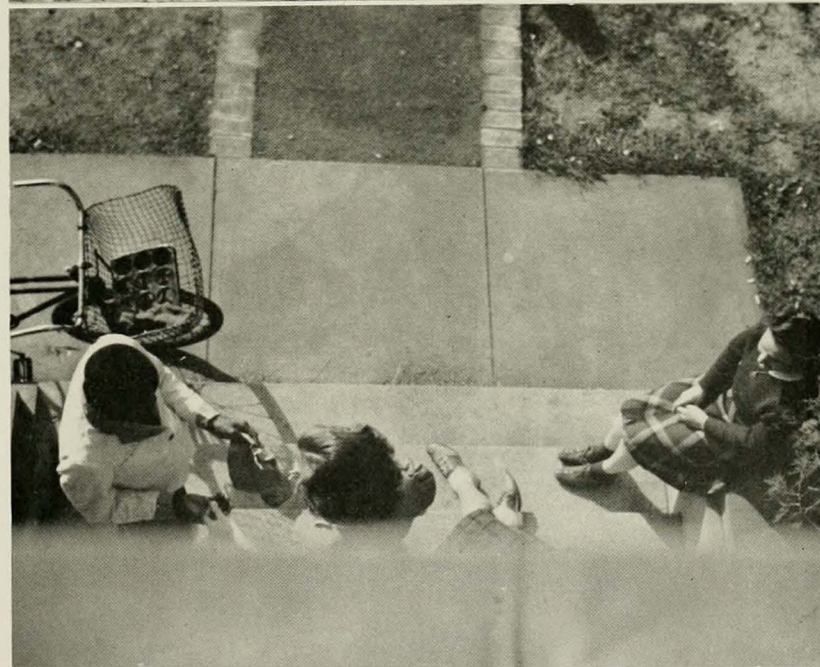

Those hours that we get together and chew the rag . . . Bunny always carries her knitting.

Fresh air fiends on the porch of Woman's . . . a distinct upper classman privilege. Just wait, you Freshies, there'll come a day.

Order Boy—what takes you so long? And I won't pay tax on Coca-Colas. I'm buying them separate.

A weird ritual . . . At home we bob apples in a tub but not the bath tub.

The serious science of bridge. Why so worried, Nan?

The Greater University of North Carolina

We Three: State, Carolina, and W. C.

It's a family affair! And has been ever since 1931 when the General Assembly of North Carolina consolidated State, Carolina, and W. C. It's nice to have big brothers. . . just ask us.

February 18, 1941 was the Fiftieth Anniversary of the Granting of the Charter for State Normal and Industrial School (that was our first name). Mrs. Tomlinson, President of the Alumnae Association, President Patten, and Dean Jackson placed a wreath on Dr. McIver's Statue in commemoration.

Dr. and Mrs. Jackson, and Governor and Mrs. Broughton at the Senior Alumnae Reception. . . Incidentally, the new Governor's first visit to our campus.

It was a great day in Raleigh when Governor Broughton, Dr. Graham, Dr. Jackson, and Ibbey Patten waxed eloquent before the State Legislature for extra appropriations to W. C. . . . P. S. They got it.

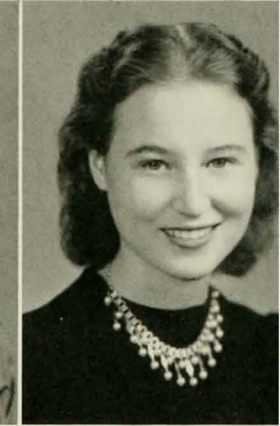

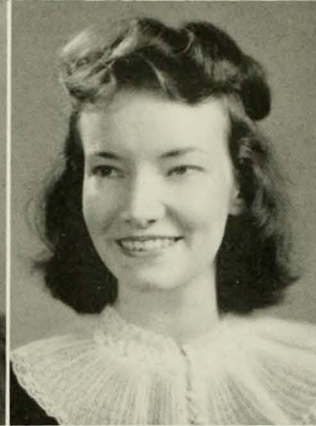

The receiving line at the Senior Alumnae Reception—Buzz Falls between the Broughtons.

Carolina Freshmen "Y" delegates socialize with those from W. C.

Mr. Rob Little, Trustee of W. C. looks us over.

The three parts get together in Raleigh for tea—our representatives: Dr. Gove, Miss Jamison, Miss Petty, and Mrs. Mary Dail Dixon, our oldest alumnae.

Politics and Women

Do Mix At W. C.

Miss "Alex" and Dean Elliot seriously listen to the election returns. This is a traditional get together every four years.

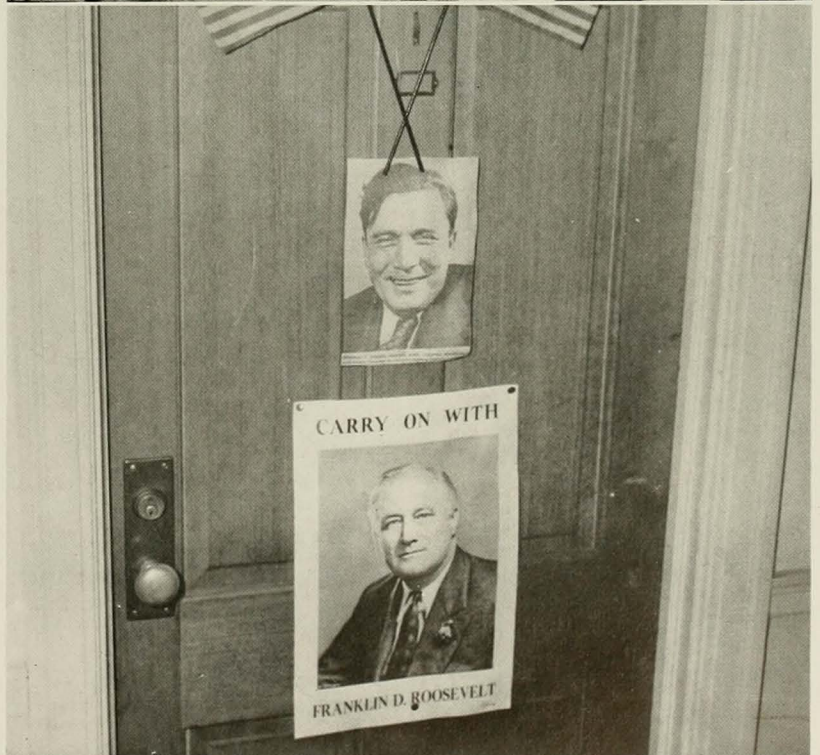

Those of us who weren't yet twenty-one held a mock presidential election in the post office. Willkie got a few votes.

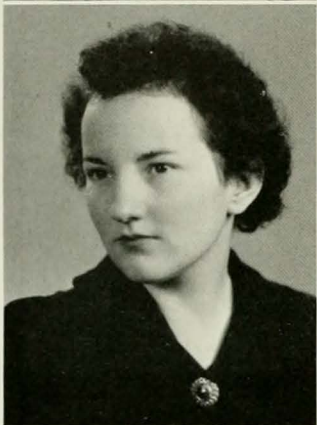

Margaret Coit, staunch Willkie-ite and Gladys Tillet, a dyed-in-the-wool Democrat, held a debate over the election. Dr. Pfaff refereed.

That was a night all school books were closed, and radios blared out way into the night. And then we celebrated.

Evidently the two Marthas are also two Democrats . . . the cheering lasted for days.

Two roommates who differed politically solved their problem by sharing their door space for patriotism.

When We Forgot Labs and Went Cultural

Opera Glasses, White Gloves, and Eugene Ormandy

It's not every college that can boast of being guests to famous artists and brilliant lecturers such as we have every year.

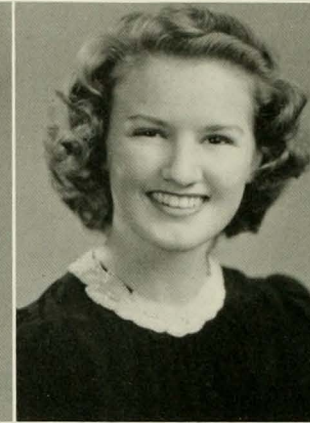

It's a happy affair when we don our best formal and go to Aycock for an evening of contrast to the humdrum of classes. Mr. Smith gathers tickets from students for AIDA... the star of the opera. Confidentially, she didn't look like this from where we sat.

Genia Nemenoff and Pierre Luboshutz (we can't pronounce them, either)—these two pianists gave a concert that was the talk of the campus for a long time.

Jarmila Novotna surprised W. C. by being a soprano with an excellent voice and a beautiful face. Those lucky girls who met her afterwards assured us she was also a charming person.

The crowning event of the year! Eugene Ormandy directs the Philadelphia Symphonic Orchestra. Milton talks of the "music of the spheres"; well, we have it once a year.

Class of '41 Trip the Light Fantastic

None But the Lonely Heart

Missed This Formal

From gym to ballroom is one easy (?) step. . . They're off! to the formal, of course. . . Faculty members watch us glide and sway—the W. C. way (apologies to Sammy Kaye) . . . Part of the decorations for the dance! . . . Intermission! that mad dash to the tavern for drinks. (These lucky people got a table) . . . Between dances—punch bowl—thirsty girls and imports. . . After the Dance is over: hall parlors—tired feet—lingering goodnights.

And so another Senior Dance card is hung by the other formal dance cards on our dressers. Sunday finds us with the last remnants of the dance in the form of an orchid on our proud shoulder . . . or maybe it's a gardenia that was a wee bit too yellow, but we just couldn't throw it away.

Monday, girls in blue gym uniforms are batting a poor defenseless tennis ball over the same smooth floor where we danced on Saturday night . . . only a few straggly decorations give any evidence that Saturday night this was the home of the waltz. But shall we tritely add—the memory lingers on.

and then --"

The pause to gather equilibrium—that's our Junior year. Exhausted from the wonder of being Sophomores, eager to become a Senior, our Junior year is just a golden haze. Being an "upper-upper classman" holds all the glorious joys of those unexplored fields called electives. After two years of required labor, we have begun to venture out on thrilling tangents.

As a class of big sisters and mothers to the Class of '44, we have had a world of fun. Arriving early in the fall of '40, Mae Duckworth and her assistants spent nights of sleeplessness and days of preparation, waiting for the charges. After the arrival, we spent more sleepless nights, but it was definitely worth the time.

The Silver Link's Ceremony took place early in the fall. After this ceremony, the Freshmen traditionally become another link in the chain—you ask, "The missing link?" Polly Sattler, representing the Junior Class; Emily Harris, representing the classes that have gone; and "Micky" Gault, representing the incoming Freshman Class, hammered in the link on "ye ole log" amid all the beauty of Peabody Park. Marshals dressed in white carried flowers in the class colors—lavender and white; the modern dance group populated the woodland scene as lovely nymphs. The flowers were later distributed among the freshman dormitories. The success of the joining of the classes goes to Frances Henry.

And did you see the "Mae Maizer" entertainment the Juniors gave the Freshmen? Such a program might have originated with Kay Kayser, but the Juniors beat him at his game. The skits were, plainly speaking, a HOWL. When Betty Coed met Joe College, the four contestants had a punning good time. The orchestra, made up of voice, was "completely sonorous".

Settling down to serious business, the Juniors have made this campus "Red Cross Conscious". It is our theory that when Uncle Sam drafts "our boys" the girls have to have something to do; it is the National Government's theory that young women should participate in the defense projects also. Thus, we Juniors lined W. C. girls up in smocks and too, too professional headgear to roll bandages and make compresses. If the boys are training, why shouldn't we? These materials are to be used in Army Training Camps throughout the country.

Right here, let's pause for a pick up in the Junior Shop. That is really an institution—and the Juniors act like executives in big business—to tell the truth we are. A snappy piece of work goes on under the iron rule of Aileen Belk and "Teenie" Oettinger.

Lovely Lib Sargent, our dance chairman for the Junior Formal, put her dance on the calendar of big campus events. A wonderful time was had. And speaking of dances—ask the Seniors about the one we gave them. Night of April twenty-six . . . Spring dance . . . Mary Sadler, dance chairman . . . words are superfluous.

Here's to the campus leaders of '42!!

The Last Chance To Be Undignified

Spice in the Life of a Junior

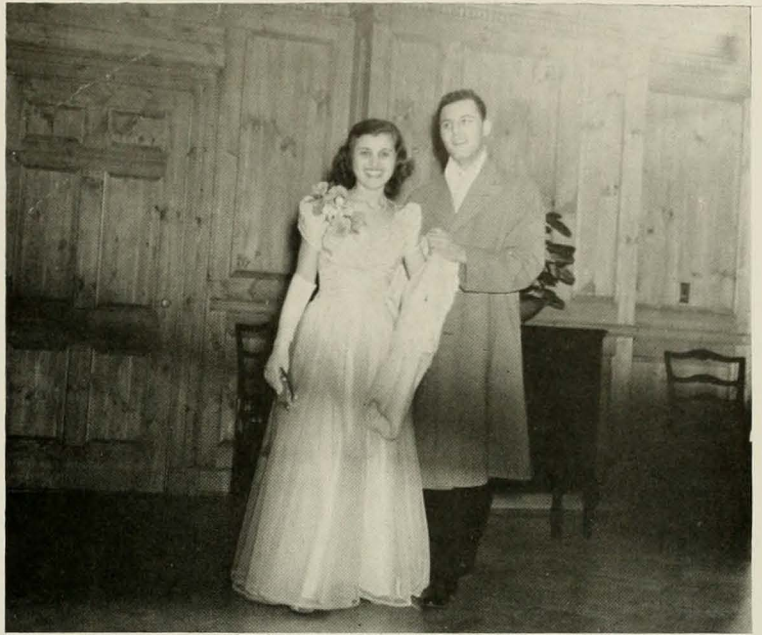

The pause to refresh at the Junior Dance.

Eat, smoke, talk, and be merry for in five minutes you have a class. . . Peg, Fran, Bandy, and Mary Lib go thru' the process of some wishful thinking via ouija board.

Bea and date leave New Hall to lead the Adelphian Dance—'Twas some affair! Play must go on—Scene: Corner hangout—Players: Juniors. Action: well, not very.

Is there a doctor in the house?—we're brewing up a stew! Just that old domestic instinct.

Of course, they all laughed when we sat down to play. . . they didn't know a side walk could be a bridge table.

Down to the Business of Being a Junior

Traditions—Styled by the Class of '42

Polly doesn't need a soapbox to carry on—she made a swell president, if we do say so. . . Ye ole Junior Shoppe—that place where pennies are raked in so the Juniors can give the Seniors a blow out—chief rakers, Aileen and Teenie. . .

Those who made a name for themselves in three years—the WHO'S WHO of the Junior Class. . . ring tailor of the year, Mary Sadler—and did we feel important that day! . . . Not exactly drafted but just doing our bit for Uncle Sam—Zabelle heads the bandage rolling. . .

After three years we still need advice—Miss Watkins, Class Chairman, to the rescue.

Juniors prepare to entertain their little sisters (Freshies to you). 'Twas a Kay Kayser night with all the trimmings except "Ye's Dance!"

"Just to be a Soph always"

The Class of '43! Insignia: pick-axes and shovels; battle cry: "Get off that grass." Woman's College salutes you—Mother Nature's little helpers! Every inhabitant from dignified Seniors to local order boys have been made to follow the chalk line (cement walks to you) as the workout for his means of transportation. This KEEP OFF THE GRASS CAMPAIGN is second in importance only to the annual Student Government elections. Not a trick has this laughing, working Sophomore class missed. Signs, patrol duty, parades and snake dances might seem impressive; but it will be a long time before the picture of these re-foresters swinging pick-axes and planting life-bearing little seeds on those barren, ugly paths will be forgotten by faculty and sister classes on this campus. In fact, as long as we live in localities where the "green grass grows all around", each blade will be an individual with its own distinct personality.

And then there was clean-up week, a week that extended. Gad, one only opened one's mail in the privacy of one's room for fear it would be snatched by some cleptomaniacs (as far as trash is concerned).

To be remembered is the seventh annual Sophomore Christmas pageant presented by the Class of '43. The series of tableaux, carried from the traditional to the modern scenes, were bound together by "The Nativity" as the central theme. Anna Rosa and Anne Pitoniak planned and prepared the scenes, adding color and music, to give their audience a beautiful and inspiring Christmas-tide. The class, at the close of their pageant asked everyone to join their caroling on the quadrangle.

Are you interested in the Oriental problem? You should have joined the Sophomores on the night of March twenty-second—they went Eastern with a capital "E". And all in a night of dancing. Rather than one of those "China Dolls" as dance chairman, was All-American Georgia Keeter. Leading any dance figure Georgia and Gladys Sessoms either solve your problems or make you forget them (the problems).

Wearing their first symbol of "upper-classism" the class of '43 looks plenty snappy in those classics known as Sophomore jackets. All white shetland wool red class insignia is, what one means in saying, "It's being WORN this season."

Sophomores—to you, your sisters, the Class of '41, send love. Carry on.

OFFICERS Ann Spivey, Treasurer; Gladys Sessoms, President;
Julia Pepper, Vice-President; Dorothy Severance, Secretary.

It's an Old Sophomore Custom

We Specialize in Dramatizing, Digging, and Dancing

The class chairman, Dr. Miller, showed the Sophs just how guidance can be done well. . . President Sessoms relaxes and reads — an unusual shot 'cause she really kept up and at it. . .

"The Nativity" was the theme of this year's Sophomore Christmas Pageant—one of THE events of the year.

Dig, dig, dig,—yeah man! There's not a beaten path left on the campus, they've been dug up by these W. P. L. Workers (We Protect Landscape). . . Even the trees bore the sad story of the unkempt campus — This is one Soph Class that really carried through the custom of "Keep off the grass" with a vengeful action.

Class of '43 took time out to stage a dance—some shin-dig.

The trees were leading the flowers were following and the grass was making the best of a bad job
The day was beautiful
the day was perfect
but what the grass was doing?

"Fresh Girls"

"Let's Go-o-o-o-o, Freshmen!" echoed from one end of the quadrangle to the other and drifted across the campus on that chilly November night when the class of '44 held its first pep meeting. There was suggestion from Lib Thrower, our newly-elected cheer leader, shouts of approval from her followers, and six hundred voices burst into a spirited rendition of the class song. Up and down the quadrangle we tramped—singing, laughing, overflowing with energetic enthusiasm for our newly-found friends, the Woman's College and her students. We were honored and thrilled with the realization that we were students on this great Southern campus; and our hearts were filled with optimism and anticipation for the four years ahead of us. It was with this enthusiastic and optimistic spirit that we began our trek forward early in September, with which we have worked through our first year here, and with which we will continue to work until we have attained the goal—graduation.

During that first week on the campus back in September when the only thing we knew was the location of the post office, it was our sister class, the Juniors, who told us the how's, where's and when's of Woman's College. To them—for a good beginning—we will always be grateful.

Several weeks later we selected our first leaders: Mary Gault, who carried our class banner, and Rebecca Beasley, who represented the class of '44 on Founder's Day. And later on, Lib Thrower was chosen cheer leader; Dorothy Lewis, Rebecca Beasley, and Lois Phillips were elected to the student legislature.

Mae Duckworth, Vice-president of the Junior class, has been our faithful leader as head of the Freshman Commission, which directed the class activities during the first semester and part of the second. The members of the Commission were: Ann White, Mildred Phillips, Phyllis Claster, Helen Hilderman, Dorothy Madsen, Cynthia Grimsley, Ann Guilbert, Elizabeth Clay, Mary King, Mary Emerson, Jean Stephenson, and Daphne Lewis.

We've had to work hard our first year, but we think if we learn as much in each of our remaining three years here as we've learned in this one year, we'll be fully qualified to receive a diploma. And although we may be reaching for the stars—it's our ambition to make our class the most outstanding ever to be graduated from this, our Woman's College!

We Begin Our Trek Forward

The Wearing-Off of the Green

Not Hitler with Nazis—just Lib Root, President of Corneli-ans with plebes on initiation day.

They showed us how—those Junior Advisers—Polly Creech mothers her brood.

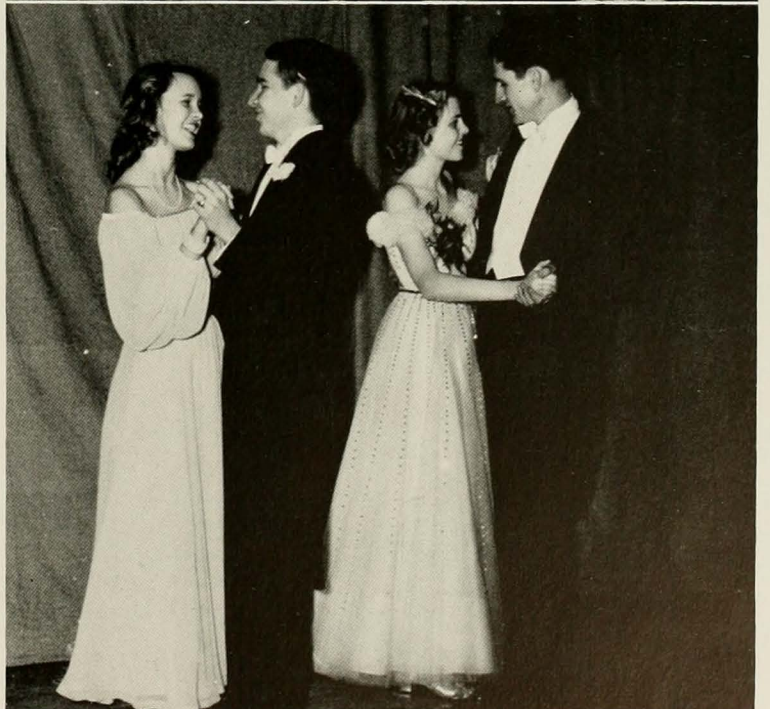

That was the real beginning—Reg-istration Day.

It takes spirit, but we have it... with Lib Thrower cheering us on...

Closed study: Watching the clock until ten-thirty—then freedom.

A meeting of the Freshman Com-mission with Mae Duckworth offici-ating. They served us faithfully with abil-ity plus.

Dancing?... but definitely!!! At the Freshman Formal—the climax of a metamorphic year for the class of '44.

"Big Business"

Type, type, type—well all right! No, they aren't jitterbugs, they are the Commercial Class of 1941.

"In a short intensive study such as our Commercial course, we have to give up a good many things," Miss Harrell, class advisor tells these girls. Four years of college in one, isn't a job at which one sneezes. Under the leadership of Madge Fuquay, class president, the Commercial Class of '41 has made a lasting attempt "to become more of a college class." Madge, always charming, inspired these COMMERCIALITES by the old rule "work when you work, play when there's time."

Just before Christmas, the commercials knock on every door, displaying annual directories. Nifty bargains—to be sure—we have to send Christmas cards; commercials have to have money for their dance. And speaking of dances—this year's was one of THE campus successes. Jackie Peddicord and Madge led these "big business" ladies and their escorts into a night of memories in "Make-Believe Land."

THE HIGHER WE RISE, THE BROADER THE VIEW—that in itself is a nice idea; but put it into action, and it becomes the standard for the Commercial Class of '41. This class does not intend to be forgotten—it isn't here today and gone tomorrow. Each succeeding class may proudly salute the maroon and white as the first banner unfurled by a commercial class—that first class came in the year of 1941.

An Alumnae Day has been established by this class that is to be an annual affair. Heading plans for this organization is Betty Miller, permeated with personality and ideas. Betty introduces a day in which former commercial students return as guests of the class to be entertained informally—y'know, meetings, supper, and dancing. This isn't a meaningless gesture, it is one that will live. Yes, the class of '41 will carry on.

To be remembered here, at the request of the Commercial Class is Miss Elizabeth Hathaway, counselor for these hundred and thirty-six girls. "Counselor" is a most formal term—it is much better to say that red-headed Miss "Sass" is the lady who not only puts her girls on the right track but also sees to it that they stick. And they love it!

OFFICERS

"And the things we do

When we have time"

WHY WE WEAR OUT SADDLE SHOES

Mrs. Roosevelt may be a busy woman, but we contend we are about as dated up on our calendar as she. There are activities galore at W. C.; anyone could get a good major in the science of extra-curriculars—the 4-H Club is one of the many—the American History Club, a group of voluntary get togethers—the Pi Kappa Lambda starts off with a bang—Dr. Stiven, Honorary Head, no less, at the initiation exercises.

Miss Boyd, director of Religious Activities, is one of the most assiduous persons on campus. . . Who can deny that looking beautiful and working at the same time is a hard job? Ask Doris and other marshals—Culture and talent in action with the Young Composers. . . Miss Byrd, Secretary of Alumnae Association, helps to keep us busy in a pleasurable way with parties and receptions.

THE ALUMNAE AND FORMER STUDENTS ASSOCIATION, INC.

OFFICERS AND BOARD MEMBERS

President: May Lovelace Tomlinson (Mrs. C. F.), High Point; Vice-President: Gertrude Hatcher Parker (Mrs. A. M., Jr.), Raleigh; Honorary President: Miss Laura H. Coit, Black Mountain; General Secretary: Miss Clara B. Byrd, Greensboro.

Members of the Board: Martha Blakeney Hodges (Mrs. Luther), New York City; Dr. Majorie Mendenhall, Greensboro; Dr. Mary Poteat, Durham; Marie Cranford Carter (Mrs. W. L.), Greensboro; Annie L. Stafford Greenfield (Mrs. Kenneth), Kernersville; Miss Margaret Gilbert, Raleigh; Moffitte Sinclair Henderson (Mrs. J. L.), Hickory; Caroline Goforth Hogue (Mrs. Richard), Washington, D. C.; Carrie Tabor Stevens (Mrs. C. E.), Council; Sue Ramsey J. Ferguson (Mrs. R. S.), Taylorsville.

What does the Alumnae Association do? Here are the general classifications:

The Alumnae Office	Following up the thousands of alumnae and former students: their occupations and activities; their changing names and addresses
The Alumnae House
The Alumnae Magazine
Homecoming	Seminars
Alumnae Day	Scholarships
Class Reunions	Hospitality and Entertainment
The Alumnae Council	Aid with the Legislative Program
The 56 Local Alumnae Clubs and Associations

The Alumnae Association is the connecting link between the Alumnae and their College. It is the highway over which the alumnae travel back to their College and remain a part of its growing life.

SOCIETIES

Our Chief Marshal, Julia Paschall, is the official hostess of Woman's College. Charming and gracious, she presides over all concerts and lectures in Aycock Auditorium.

ADELPHIAN SOCIETY

Having no sororities, W. C.'s social life is sponsored by four lively societies—Adelphian, Cornelian, Aletheian, and Dikean—whose combined membership is the entire student body and whose activities are manifold. Four of the outstanding social affairs of the year are sponsored by these societies. What—in the mind of a girl—is a more blissful or thrilling event than a super-formal dance? One at which she can don a strapless evening gown, place orchids in her hair (depending upon Bill or Bob's thoughtfulness and pecuniary status), and dip and pirouette upon a dance floor amid a pastel swirl of foamy tulle or net in a manner devastating to masculine eyes and hearts? These society formals are eagerly awaited and girls begin to fill out their dance cards many months ahead and to ask their o.a.o.'s (all college girls aren't fickle!) to remember that THAT particular evening will be spent at W. C. Other girls, more coy, wait and ask their dates only a few weeks in advance; but you may be sure that all of them—coy, settled, undecided, indifferent, or otherwise—have decided upon their dresses and filled their cards long before. Nor are they the only ones who "chart their course ahead." Many confabs are held, and there is much debate over the theme and decorations for the formal—shall the gym be converted into a colorful circus tent or a picturesque garden of the Old South or a trim ocean-going liner? Whose orchestra shall they have? What figure will they use? Finally decisions are made, and many grueling hours are spent in working out the details.

Eventually THE week-end arrives. Festivities begin Saturday afternoon with a tea dance, usually held in Spencer game room. If you want to know what is being worn by smart young ladies this season according to MADMOISELLE and VOGUE, just watch the pretty maids as they go on their way to the game room! The tea dances are girl-break and are very popular as the girls delight in giving the males a "taste of their own medicine"—as the saying goes. By late afternoon the campus streets are full of cars—cars of all types. . . from 1941 Buick convertibles to arks boldly proclaiming by means of red paint upon doors that their names are "Lizzy" or "Puddlejumper" or "Skeepopulus". The number of out-of-state licenses bears witness to the charm of W. C. girls. After the tea dance, the couples go downtown for dinner or—if the girl's persuasive powers are great enough to overcome her date's "natural" dislike(?) of being conspicuous—they go to one of the dining halls where all her friends—and enemies—stop to speak to her about something that just CAN'T wait until Monday. Immediately after nightfall, dormitories are ablaze with light and hum with activity. An air of expectancy hovers over the campus. Helen breathes a sigh of relief when her flowers arrive and don't clash with her dress, and somehow she manages to think of something and lives through that awful moment when Johnny calls to tell her he has left his dress shirt at Duke!

Later on at the gymnasium—you won't recognize it as anything so unromantic as a gym but as a scene from one of your favorite dreams—the orchestra is beating out that sophisticated rhythm that makes everyone's feet want to move. Needless to say, the formal is a huge success; and afterward the "I said's" and the "he said's" echo down dorm halls far into the night! Monday morning after such a gala week-end a girl may be a bit slow in answering Dr. Clark's questions in Philosophy. . . but only because she has been putting Epicurean principles into practice, and after all—unlike Christmas—society formals come but four times a year!

The thirty-two charming girls who serve as marshals at all college functions are chosen by the societies, and the chief marshal is elected by the student body. It's quite an honor to be a marshal; and when they appear, looking smooth and lovely in their long white dresses, they're the envy of all the girls!

In the spring Sports Day brings the rivalry among the societies to the fore. Afternoon classes are suspended, and all loyal society members adjourn to the playing fields to "do or die" for their color. All participants wear hair ribbons of their society color; and every time they place in an event, points are chalked up for their side. At the close of the day, these points are totaled, and the society having the highest number is adjudged the winner—and don't think they don't gloat over it! There're all kinds of sports: tennis, badminton, pingpong, horseshoe-pitching, track, and various relay races. The funniest of the relays is usually the slow bicycle race. Last year during the tug-of-war the girls were so strong and pulled so hard that the rope broke (I guess that proves that they feed us well up here!). The most exciting events of the afternoon are the two baseball games in which members of the faculty play on the society teams and Dr. Graham and Dr. Jackson are required to toss coins to decide which game they'll play in and for which society. These two games are the World Series of W. C. and arouse fully as much interest.

The freshman is introduced to the societies after her first three weeks of college life when an invitation to join one or the other of them is slipped under her door in the wee hours of the morning. Along with this invitation is a little cardboard slip announcing the rules and regulations for Initiation Day. . . . The main one being "Obey all upperclassmen in your society!" What a world of activity that one short rule governs! If you see a girl down on her hands and knees on the bridge with her nose close to the ground, she's not playing Sherlock Holmes nor is she a Scotch lass hunting for a penny but is a freshman meekly obeying the command of her betters(?) to "sweep the bridge with a toothbrush." The astonishing number of clean saddle shoes on upperclassmen feet the following day is the direct result of the elbow grease of quite a few freshmen. The same can be said for the spotless rooms Mrs. Boyd finds in her weekly dormitory room check. The initiates begin the day by complaining over being denied the use of cosmetics, but they end it by fervently declaring that they're so tired that one extra gram of anything (even their beloved make-up) would cause a total collapse. However, they'll usually concede—after a day's rest—that it WAS fun. One night after they've recuperated, formal initiation is held. This is an impressive ceremony followed by a wonderful banquet and a good time is had by all.

THE PINE NEEDLES

Have you ever stood before a firing squad? (No, of course you haven't.) Well, we know how it feels. Before our feeble brains started manufacturing ideas(?), we were told this year must be the year for a good annual. They (the public) didn't mean perhaps. Frantically we groped for what we felt would please the girls, the faculty, and the taxpayer. 'Twas a job—but then that's meat to editors.

We've broken so many precedents (it's a hobby) that the mere mention of "it has always been done like this" has sent us into hair pulling rages—almost anyway.

We've established one thing though: a trade mark for the PINE NEEDLES. Anyone seen stumbling along half asleep with dark circles from the lack of that "balm to hurt minds" is bound to be one of the slaves for Ye Ole Yearbook.

When we needed the comfort and advice of wiser heads than ours, we dashed to Miss Largent. When we became strangled by commas and gerunds, we wailed for Dr. Kholer. When we violated good art form, we called on Mr. Ivey. And we can never forget the soothing and inspiring words of Dr. Jackson: "Where the annual is concerned, the editor is boss. . . if you please."

The day the cover design arrived we felt that miraculously "the thing" was actually going to be a book. The proof is in your hands.

After all this jargon, we really mean to say: if you like it, we haven't toiled in vain.

And wouldn't you know that there would be a newspaper-minded bunch of girls mixed in with all the Woman's College horde? THE CAROLINIAN, campus weekly, is the extra-curricular journalistic workshop. And wouldn't you know that there would be a bunch to cover the campus for news like a flu epidemic at exam time; to cover the advertising men of Greensboro for ads like that swarm of locusts covered "THE GOOD EARTH"; to poke their noses-for-newsies into art labs and the laundry and the registrar's office and heaven knows where else in search of feature stories when all such places are raising hives on themselves being busy bees; to spell things wrong, particularly names, to read copy and miraculously find no breaches of CAROLINIAN, or otherwise, etiquette; to write headlines and benignly insert a breach of CAROLINIAN, or otherwise etiquette so that the count will meet the requirements of the style sheet; to entirely overlook or fail to uncover THE story of the week until after the printer had slapped the embryo CAROLINIAN onto the composing stone Thursday night? Ah, wouldn't you know that there would be such a bunch?

The bunch is composed of 105-odd girls. The editor-in-chief, Peggy, administers the editorial staff with the aid of the faithful managing editor and three hard-working associate editors. The editorial staff is composed of an editorial board, two sports editors, headline writers, two staff artists, two exchange managers and their helpers, two circulation managers, a staff photographer, and some 35 reporters. When Friday nights roll around, each hall sends two newsgirls after the CAROLINIAN and the COLLEGIATE DIGESTS, brown rotogravure sections, to be distributed soon after dinner at each girl's door. The business manager, Marty, administers a business staff of some 15 girls with the aid of the advertising manager.

On Tuesday and Wednesday nights the CAROLINIAN office, located on the ground floor of beautiful Alumnae House, is a volcanic miniature of a hustling, paper-strewn, smoky city room of a giant metropolitan daily in the last throes of going to press, for on Wednesdays and Thursdays at eight o' the morning the printer comes charging up to the office in his '33 Chevy to collect copy and ads to be printed, advertising and editorial mats to be poured. On Tuesday and Wednesday nights the editors read and rewrite copy. They yell at each other above the tack-tack-tack of the typewriters. Headlines are written amidst sweat and blood. The paper's six pages are made up. The assignment editor chases down by telephone reporters disrespectful of deadlines and blesses them out helpfully. The business manager and the advertising manager, with a calm, business-like air, rake in the money and ads from a circle of poking ad-gatherers. On Thursday afternoons members of the editorial staff read proof out at The Printer's. And then on Friday nights—28 in the collegiate year, 1940-41—Woman's College reads about its goings-on in the six pages of THE CAROLINIAN.

MARGARET COIT
EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

FRANCES STATON
BUSINESS MANAGER

CORADDI

Under the leadership of Margaret Coit as Editor-in-Chief and her assistants, Gwendolyn Gay, Poetry Editor, and Frances Templeton, Art Editor, CORADDI, the college literary magazine, has been walking a tight rope. In the past the magazine has set such high standards that only a few contributors were able to uphold them. This year the scope has been broadened in an effort to enlarge the number of contributors while still retaining these standards. Although keeping the contributions "literary", Margaret has attempted to include humor, romances, and material of contemporary social significance as well as of literary value.

Twelve new contributors have been presented to the college public by the magazine this year as a result of its new policy. The material published has been as varied as possible. Advisers of all tastes and types have been consulted. The magazine has printed three short stories an issue, several poems, an article of literary criticism and one of news, personality sketches, and miscellaneous essays, satires, and sketches. As all college literary magazines, the CORADDI has been greatly influenced in the style of its writing by contemporary writers. Much of the poetry and prose had been under the direct influence of Mr. and Mrs. Allen Tate up until a year or two ago. This year, however, has shown a tendency on the part of collegiate contributors to fall into the terseness of Mr. Hemingway. CORADDI aims to please the hardier souls on campus too.

The art work, modern in trend as in previous years, has begun to be supplemented with an occasional photograph and with illustrations for the stories. In variety of mediums, the art of the campus is represented by water colors, lithographs, pen and ink, and pencil sketches. Modernism is even more pronounced than in the poetry and prose departments. This modernism is largely responsible for the literary tone of the magazine. CORADDI has walked a straight and narrow road in an effort to be at once the voice of the college and the literary medium of expression for those groups of students interested in creative writing.

The business end of the magazine has been ably upheld by Frances Staton and her assistants. The cooperation between Frances and Margaret has added to the success of the CORADDI.

THE HOME ECONOMICS HONOR SOCIETY

"Onward to Omicron Nu" has been the byword for the Home Economics Honor Society this year. This organization composed of Junior and Senior Home Economic Majors, is a recognition of excellence in scholarship and leadership. It corresponds in academic standards to Phi Beta Kappa of the Liberal Arts School, and has worked toward becoming a member of the Omicron Nu, the corresponding national organization. In addition to this goal are the traditional aims of recognizing and promoting scholarship and leadership in Home Economics.

GAMMA ALPHA

While all the other departments were organizing clubs of various sorts, the Secretarial Administrators put their heads together and organized the Gamma Alpha Club for Juniors, Seniors, and Graduates of the Department of Secretarial Science. The Club has for its aim to create a professional attitude of its members by contact with business leaders all over the state, and by studying and discussing present problems and movements in the business world. With the help of Business Secretarial Graduates of Woman's College, the Gamma Alpha is attempting to form similar clubs over this and other states. Rebecca Woosley, president of the Gamma Alpha Club, has instigated the publishing of a newspaper for the High Schools.

THE HANDBOOK

Come September, comes the handbook—a pocket-size dictionary of W. C. complete with a map. . . and oh, how big that map looks to freshmen (but by their second day up here they vow it minimized distances!). This little book can tell you just about anything you want to know about Woman's College—its clubs, athletic association, recreation centers, snack shops, dormitories—in other words it's a "Who's Who" and a "What's What" of W. C. We all get that "back to school and in the groove" urge about the end of the summer when we begin to buy fall clothes and the postman leaves the new handbook in the mailbox.

INTER-FAITH COUNCIL

The primary purpose of Inter-Faith Council is not to be an efficient business organization but to promote cooperation and understanding among the different denominational groups on campus. Each religious group has two representatives on Council (usually the president and—if there is one—the student secretary of the group); the Y. W. C. A. also has two.

At the beginning of the year, Inter-Faith Council plays its part in making the incoming freshmen feel welcome by appointing committees to meet them at the stations and, later in the week, by having a special worship service for them. It also keeps a watchful eye on the parties which are given by the groups for the freshmen to be sure that no minority religious groups are overlooked in the rush. All during the year it keeps each group informed of the activities of the other groups in order that they will be coordinated to some extent and that there will be as few conflicting events as possible.

YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

BESS JOHNSON
PRESIDENT

We may well feel proud of Bess for the wonderful job she's done this year. Being president of the "Y" is one of the hardest tasks on campus—to be successful one must have as many arms as an octopus and as many ideas as F. D. R. Dignity, resourcefulness, graciousness, and an even temper are necessary qualities—Bess has them all. She has managed to inject a personal touch into the "Y" and has really gotten results.

If Woman's College had a bakery shop, the Y.W.C.A. would have a "finger in every pie"! Its activities on our campus are manifold and are as varied as college girls' coiffures. Next to the dining halls the "Y" is about the first thing with which the bewildered freshmen become acquainted. They're introduced to it by means of some entertainment and are invited to join one of the freshmen clubs, which aid the new students greatly in becoming adjusted to college life. Your first year at W.C. is not really complete unless you belong to a Freshman "Y" Club—the fellowship you find there (and elsewhere in the "Y" . . . on Cabinet, in the Sophomore Clubs) is something to be prized as such fellowship is rarely experienced. This year the freshmen had parties for underprivileged children, a faculty tea, a deputation from Carolina (how the upperclassmen envied them that week-end!) a retreat with the sophomores at which Dr. Kenneth Foreman of Davidson led the discussions, and—at Christmas—the making of wreaths and the traditional "Hanging of the Green" preceded by a worship service and followed by open house.

The class of '42 liked the freshman clubs so well that it asked for a Sophomore Club, and the class of '43 did the same this year. This club has really filled a vacant place on campus. It has successfully carried out several worthwhile projects—such as the sale of T.B. seals and the distribution of Thanksgiving baskets. This latter project had never before been attempted on a campus-wide scale, and we were all delighted when it went over with a bang.

Many girls on campus are under a gross misconception concerning our "Y". To them the words "Y" Cabinet are synonymous with the "Y.W.C.A." In reality, the Cabinet is a part—a very integral part, to be sure—but still only a part of the whole organization known as the Y.W.C.A. It is the "guiding spirit", the "planning board", the "board of directors", so to speak, for the larger W.C. "Y" whose membership is several hundred. The Cabinet meets once a week and has a supper-meeting once a month at which time they either have a speaker or a deputation from another school with them (this fall it was Duke). The retreats in the spring and fall are among the fondest memories of those who have attended them; fellowship, prayer, discussion, and loads of fun . . . that's a Cabinet retreat. Oh! we almost forgot that very important personage, the temperamental weather man . . . someday the girls are going to surprise themselves by taking the right amount of cover!

The home of the "Y" is in the R. A. Center, and the main room with its venetian blinds, lovely draperies, and modernistic furniture closely resembles the living room of your dream house. This room was the setting for a wonderful student-faculty party (wish we had more of them) in December, a tea for transfers early in the fall, and many other distinctive social and religious gatherings.

This winter the "Y" became political-minded and sponsored a debate which will long be remembered: Coit (for Willkie) vs Tillet (for Roosevelt) with Dr. Pfaff as "referee". "International Week-end" brought many foreign students to our campus in November and was a tremendous success. As usual the "Y" has been the instigator and sponsor of many affairs beneficial to the college and the community at large: open forums, exam teas, Sunday night open house for girls and their dates, community service work . . . particularly with the Girl Scouts and Girl Reserves in town, discussion groups, and other events too numerous to be mentioned in an article with a "word-limit"!

THE Y. W. C. A. CABINET

The nucleus of the "Y" with Miss Helen Boyd as its adviser.

THE TOWN STUDENT'S ASSOCIATION

Conga . . . Rumboogie . . . or whatever you may call it . . . that was the anvil chorus for our Town Students this year. The Second Annual Formal Dance was a spectacle of lovely senioritas and gay caballeros dancing "The South American Way"—and like the Pan-American Better Relationships Envoy, Doris Shaffer, the president, has created a closer union between the South Americans (Town Students to you) and the United States (the campus brats). Proof? Drop in the Day Student's room any day and try to find out which ones are which. Or just browse around at any resident hall entertainment, and see the Town Students there as much at home as the house president herself.

PHI BETA KAPPA

Each spring we suddenly realize the inner depths of some of our fellow students. Comes a certain chapel morning and word gets around that Phi Beta Kappa elections are to be announced. We go, as always, and sit, half in awe and half in triumphant jubilation, as our best friend, who takes off every week-end and doesn't miss a dance for miles around, walks hesitantly out on the platform. We crowd around the fledglings afterward and nearly deafen them with congratulations. We are proud that we can say now that we helped a Phi Beta with her knitting when she got into difficulties. We are almost as nervous and excited as they are. It's a wonderful feeling!

This spring, in addition to the three girls elected last year as Juniors: Johanna Boet, Margaret Dickson, and Jane Parker, thirteen Seniors: Alma Brewer, Alice Calder, Bobbie Lee Clegg, Jane Gillett, Peggy Hammond, Virginia Lee, Dora Oliver, Helen Parker, Elizabeth Patten, Alice Porter, Betty Prevette, Betsy Sanders, and Helen Williams; two Juniors: Jean Grantham and Mary Lou Mackie; and two faculty members: Miss Josephine Hege and Miss Katherine Taylor were installed into the oldest Greek letter society in America.

Originally formed as a social fraternity for college men with interests in common, Phi Beta Kappa has lost this aspect and become a symbol of the highest achievement a major in the college of arts and science can obtain. It is now a scholastic honor to receive a bid to membership.

The Woman's College section of the national Phi Beta Kappa was installed in December, 1934. This section is a part of the Alpha Chapter of Phi Beta Kappa in North Carolina; that is, it is a part of the chapter which includes both the Woman's College and the University of North Carolina, two of the three components of the Greater University.

Previous to the organization of Phi Beta Kappa at the Woman's College, there had been an Honor Society in existence for several years which gave recognition to students for high scholastic achievement in much the same way that Phi Beta Kappa does now. This Honor Society included the faculty members who were members of the Phi Beta Kappa and Sigma Xi, Honorary Societies.

Phi Beta Kappa is an honor society for students in the Liberal Arts division of the college. Only those who study the Bachelor of Arts courses are eligible for this honor. The general purpose of the organization is to promote scholastic endeavor in this field through giving recognition to those students who make outstanding records. The members in course are elected early in the second semester after having completed seven semesters of work in the Woman's College. Transfer students are also eligible for membership under certain conditions.

The officers of the section at Woman's College are: Miss Bernice Draper, President; Dr. L. B. Hurley, Vice-President; Dr. Key L. Barkley, Corresponding Secretary and Treasurer; and Miss Kate Wilkins, Recording Secretary.

FIRST ROW: Dr. Frank Graham, Miss Katherine Taylor, Miss Josephine Hege, Miss Bernice Draper, Dr. W. C. Jackson, Dr. L. B. Hurley, Dr. Key L. Barkley.
SECOND ROW: Bobbie Lee Clegg, Helen Williams, Virginia Lee, Helen Parker, Alice Calder, Betsy Sanders THIRD ROW: Betty Prevette, Johanna Boet, Jane Parker, Peggy Hammond.
FOURTH ROW: Margaret Dickson, Alice Porter, Elizabeth Patten, Dora Oliver, Jane Gillett.

PLAYLIKERS Scene

If anything causes a W. C. girl to beam happily, it is the mention of the Playlikers. All of us are very proud of and interested in the work of our splendid dramatic society. The Playlikers' 1940-1941 season opened with a colorful, bright, Amazonian comedy, "Warrior's Husband", directed by Mr. Wilbur Dorsett. And what a comedy it was! . . . W. C. has never seen its like before!

Mrs. Marion T. Fitz-Simmons directed the next play, "Family Portrait". This was a beautiful story of Christ's family and was given on two consecutive nights as a timely and fitting pre-Christmas production. In February came a psychological mystery play entitled "Kind Lady" and directed by Mr. W. R. Taylor. Following this, in March, the Playlikers presented a tragic folk-fantasy called "Wild Birds" with Mrs. Fitz-Simmons as director. The April play was given for the benefit of the children in the vicinity, and was an attempt to bring the theater to them as well as to adults. Shakespeare's poetry was heard again this year in Aycock in the May performance and in the commencement performance of his lively comedy "Twelfth Night". This play, directed by Mr. Taylor, brought the season to a close. The third annual version of "Heck's-a-poppin'" was presented in the spring when the Playlikers took time off to poke a little fun at themselves and to have a good time which could be enjoyed in an informal and intimate way by their audience.

The Playlikers carried on a program of expansion this year. Besides devoting a major production, the idea of bringing drama to them was furthered by a radio script writing group, newly-organized under the sponsorship of Mr. Dorsett, and by numerous other small channels and contacts. The speech choir, under the direction of Mrs. Fitz-Simmons, was another new project which attracted many people. It made its initial appearance when it did "Nightmare at Noon" in the Thanksgiving chapel program.

Much of the most important and most interesting work of the organization is carried on behind the scenes—the girls who handle the lights, paint the scenery, design the costumes, and put on the make-up will vouch for that. The technical crew was kept very busy lending assistance to various programs, concerts, and dances given by other campus organizations. It also helped with the chapel programs and throughout the year aided professional groups performing in Aycock. There was more student participation than ever before in designing costumes and sets, and much new talent came to the fore both on stage and back stage.

THE COLLEGE CHOIR

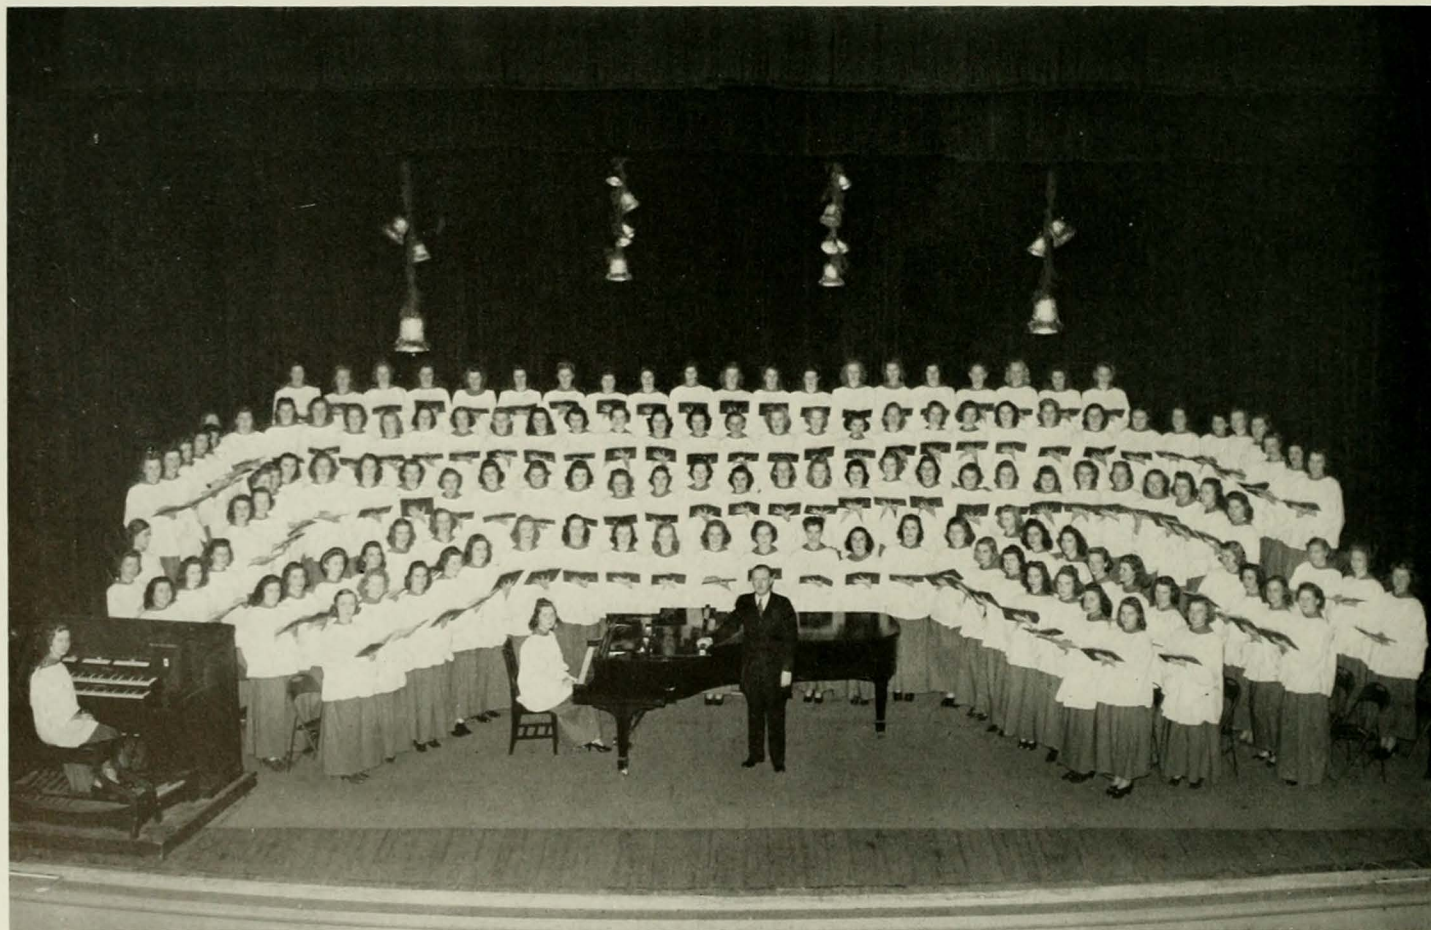

"Can you carry a tune? No voice lessons? That's all right—you can still sing in the choir." This might have been the conversation on any corner at W. C. When the choir was being organized by Mr. George Thompson, over a hundred girls readily accepted this "invitation to singing." The outcome has been one of extreme success.

Almost every Tuesday at chapel the choir affords us music that we feel proud to call our own not only because it is made by the girls of W. C., but also because it is music almost incomparable to other college choirs.

As we think of Christmas on campus, we shall always remember the lump in our throats as we left the Christmas Concert. The choir got as much thrill out of it as we did.

THE COLLEGE BAND

A roll of the drums, a "Forward, March!" and they're off! Stepping like Kentucky thoroughbreds, the majorettes lead the college band: a spirited unit in dashing yellow uniforms that impart color, pep, and life to the outstanding athletic events of the fall, affording keen competition for the bands of the University of North Carolina, North Carolina State, Wake Forest, Davidson, and for the bands of other colleges. The members of the band contribute greatly to the building of an enthusiastic, loyal spirit on the campus of Woman's College. In winter, the band functions as a concert and symphonic organization; in spring, it is hostess for a week to high school students participating in the State-Wide Music Contest. While enjoying musical recreation, the band members contribute to the musical advancement of the entire student body at Woman's College. They're active! they're perseverant! they're energetic. They're doing their part to maintain on this campus the spirit of democracy!

THE GLEE CLUB

"You're on the air!" the announcer barked, and the Glee Club gave forth such superb music that they were asked to sing again on the nation wide hook-up of the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The Glee Club has given performances in nearly every town in North Carolina. They should cribbage on the Navy motto and say "Join the Glee Club and see North Carolina". The only drawback is that to be a member, you have to be a student of the voice department. But that isn't all—you are chosen for musicianship and reliability.

The two objectives of the Glee Club are to contribute to the musical development and vocal maturity of the individual member, and to give performances of compositions for women's voices not commonly heard. All of you musical neophytes take note! It's an honor to be asked to join the Glee Club, and the only way is the hard way. We aren't discouraging you; we're just telling you.

Jane Walker, PRESIDENT

THE MADRIGAL CLUB

Music is a medium by which we all find common bondage. Jane Walker, president of the Madrigal Club, felt this and decided to use it to advantage. The club has directed the Saturday night sings, the dorm sings, and the traditional Christmas carols wherein we can all vocalize to our lungs content.

The Madrigal Club is composed of Majors in the School of Music under the leadership of Miss Grace Van Dyke More. This organization provides an opportunity for companionship for those students whose chief interest lies in the field of public school music teaching. The members are able to discuss their pleasures and problems of music from piccalo to bassoon.

A passerby at one of their meetings would probably think a foreign language club was assembled; but CRESCENDO, PIZZICATO, and CANTIBLE are words of their workaday vocabulary. Not only can they pronounce them, but they can use them correctly.

THE SOCIOLOGY CLUB

Man is a funny animal—especially when he is herded with more of his species. The Sociology Club has made fascinating searches into the actions of these gregarious creatures. As a field in which to find social problems the Club has centered its activities in Greensboro. The members, all Sociology majors, find that this organization with its practical experience has aided them to select this field for future life.

To add to their surveys, speakers have been invited to give different phases of social work of other districts.

White, black, or yellow—man behaves in various and sundry fashions, and the search for the key to his behavior is just as thrilling as a trip into the unexplored wilds with Frank Buck or any of those tiger hunters. This the Sociology Club will ascertain.

Annette Bridges, PRESIDENT

THE QUILL CLUB

Criticism flies thick and fast at every meeting of the Quill Club, but nobody minds. The most minute details of the private lives of the fictional characters of each new story written by a member are carefully scrutinized and held up to the strict but friendly criticism of the other fifty members. The reason that nobody minds is that the Quill Club was founded primarily for this purpose. It is the student literary organization of the campus, a band of girls interested in creative writing. Prose and poetry are given an equal opportunity to be heard.

All is not work, however. Even the most ardent needs a moment of relaxation; so, interspersed with meetings of serious intent are parties and teas. Teas are held once a year to entertain one of the lecture program speakers who has dealt with some phase of literature.

CHEMISTRY CLUB

Test tubes. . . Bunsen burners. . . oxidation and reduction. . . smell of hydrogen sulfide. . . atomic theory: is that interesting to you? Do you realize the importance of three-hour labs in the scheme of things? If so, then work hard, make good grades, and you might be asked to join the Chemistry Club. All Junior and Senior Majors and Minors are eligible for membership as well as some interested A and B students who may be voted into the club.

This year the programs have been on the history of chemistry—this really is not as dry as it first sounds; they tell me that they've been grand programs and were arranged so as not to go over the heads of the younger members. The girls also discussed recent developments in the field of chemistry and their application to modern industry and this world-we-live-in. And—lest all work and no play should make Jill a dull girl—there've been several "social" meetings during the year.

Lula Mae Saunders, PRESIDENT

MEDICAL TECHNOLOGIST CLUB

When you're in a hospital and have a shiny needle plunged into your favorite finger, remember the trials and tribulations undergone by these girls while trying to learn how to do this self-same trick with a swift stroke. If this prick is accompanied by a couple of rather ancient jokes,—for the sake of your alma mater's Med Tech Club—laugh anyway. This group of potential young scientists, who love to mingle fun and informality at meetings with their training, may have dark shadows under their eyes most of the time; but it's all due to burning the midnight oil in order to learn the life cycle of some particular parasite. If you're inclined to think life in a hospital might be dull, peep around the nearest corner at the tall, handsome internes (mind the competition at the corner!)—methinks there's method in the would-be technologists' madness, even though they do spend most of their college days in a lab.

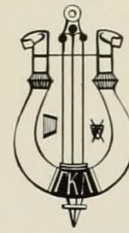

BOTANY CLUB

Fraternity pins galore have been lost on campus recently; therefore, if you see a girl snooping around the grass, she's probably either (1) a broken-hearted lassie, or (2) a member of the Botany Club. This club is an affiliated member of the North Carolina Academy of Science, and this year is cooperating with the North Carolina Federation of Garden Clubs in labeling the trees on campus. The youthful botanists do an unusual amount of field work such as planting trees and taking trips to study plant life. They also try to conserve natural beauty on campus and off. Their semi-monthly programs are usually botanical movies, discussions, or speeches given by leading North Carolina botanists. Due to the early appearance of a certain plant, the Botany Club forecast an early spring this year which means that sneezing and the proverbial "change in a young man's fancy" will both get a head start!

PI KAPPA LAMBDA

April 30, 1940 marked the installation of Tau Chapter of Pi Kappa Lambda, Honorary National Music Fraternity, a society which recognizes the superior student in professional music courses. Chapters of the society are established in music schools and departments of music in colleges and universities of recognized musical standing that offer a Bachelor's degree in Music. Election to this society means for the music student what election to Phi Beta Kappa means to the Liberal Arts student.

The Chapel exercises on April 30th were in honor of Pi Kappa Lambda Day, and the new chapter was installed at that time. President Frank Graham presided; Miss Grace Van Dyke More, of the School of Music faculty, described the organization and announced the newly elected members, both from former classes and from the Class of 1940, and the faculty members. The new Tau Chapter was installed by Director Frederick B. Stiven, of the School of Music, University of Illinois, and President Graham accepted the charter.

FACULTY MEMBERS OF PI KAPPA LAMBDA

THE ART CLUB

When good fellows get together you hear such words as "surrealistic", "modernistic", and "impressionistic"—that is, if they are members of the Art Club (which means—nine times out of ten—that they're art majors). They're marked not only by their vocabulary of "fifty-cent words", but also by their bespattered smocks, paint on the tips of their noses, and pencil smudges most anywhere. However, you really don't notice their appearance so much because you have to peep over or behind huge portfolios to see them at all. All kidding aside, we're very proud of our campus artists, and they've done plenty of good stuff as a visit to some of the exhibits will prove. This club sponsors exhibits of the works of students as well as other contemporary artists during the year; and at their meetings there are usually talks in some field of art by post-graduates or members of the faculty.

Bettie Rosa, PRESIDENT

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

This year the members of the Home Economics Club—realizing that there is more to Home Ec than a broom, a sewing machine, a stove, and a dishpan—decided to have a program which would bring to light (and to mind) the various existing angles of their subject. Their monthly meetings, therefore, revolved around the general theme of "Agencies Which Contribute to Home Making Education", or, as someone coined it, "Spokes in the Wheels of Home Ec Progress".

With the aid of some of its financial wizards, the club put on a Christmas sale to raise money for the emergency loan fund which is available for the use of any Home Economics upper classman. They also gave a lively and generous Christmas party for twelve needy little girls.

'Twould be nice to be a Home Ec major so you could be in this club; and then, too, the little birdie says that the reason there's always an opening for a Home Ec Teacher is because they all get married!

THE SQUARE CIRCLE

Can she give a geometric proof? Does she know a SINE from a COSINE? Can she work with logarithms? Naturally! she's a member of the Square Circle ('tis a wondrous age we live in—they've even invented square circles since our mothers went to school). All Junior and Senior Math Majors are automatically members of this club; other students are invited to join if they make an A or B. Speaking of these other students: forty-four freshmen were eligible for membership this year, forty-four invitations were issued, and forty-four girls were initiated!—how's that for keeping the figures straight? These girls were initiated in February with the traditional initiation ceremony at which—so we hear—the president, temporarily forgetting one of her speeches, brought "tradition" up-to-date. This club fosters interest in mathematical problems outside the classroom and promotes friendship among the Math students. Who knows but that someday one of these budding geniuses may trisect an angle!

Margaret Dickson, PRESIDENT

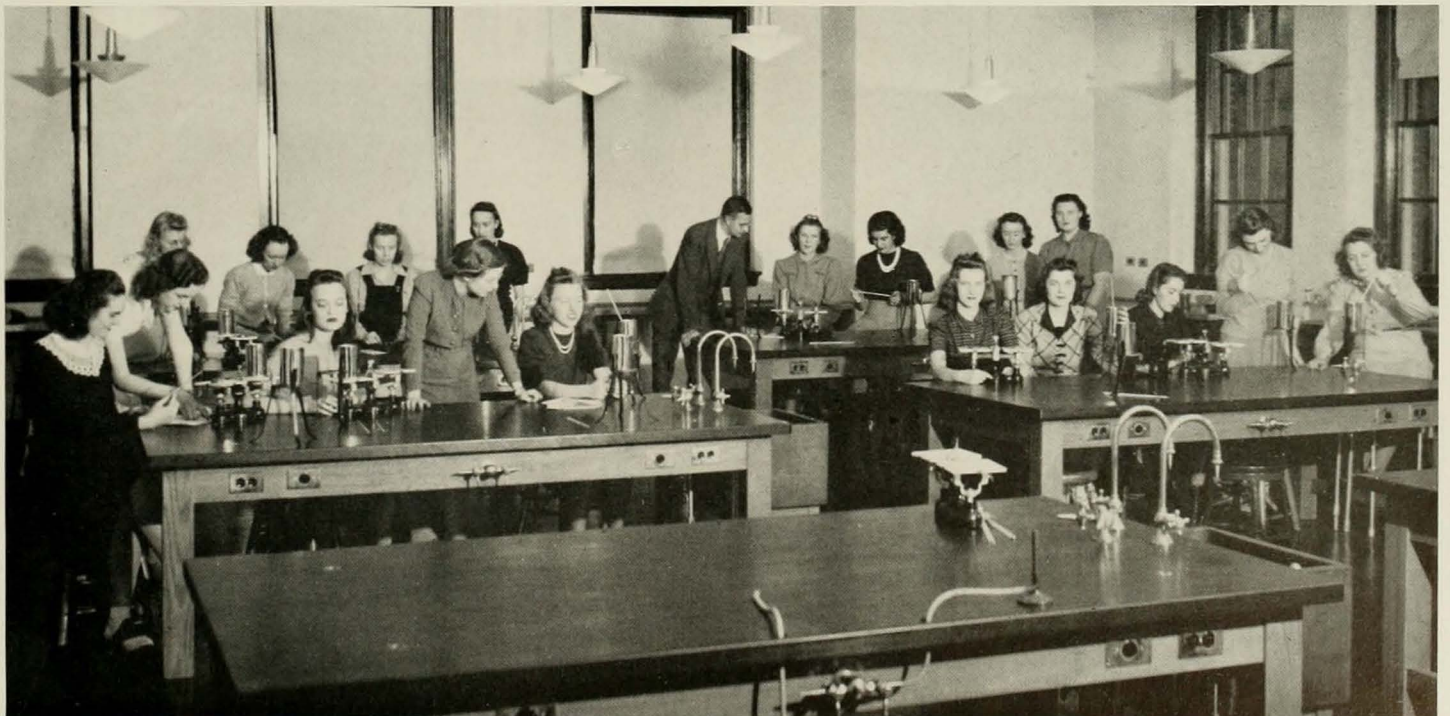

PHYSICS CLUB

You may not understand Einstein's Theory of Relativity; but if you are a member of the Physics Club, you have heard it discussed this year and should, by the theory of association, know something about it. True believers in "variety is the spice of life", the Physics Club has had for discussion everything from doorbells to Electron Microscopes. One meeting found the members atop the Science Building studying the stars. One romantic physicist bewailed the fact that the club didn't have honorary male members. Cheer up—there may come a day.

Eligibility to the club is based upon grades made in a beginning Physics course. Dr. Tiedeman, of photography fame, is the faculty adviser. Ask any member, and she will tell you how well he has guided them.

Just the mere mention of Physics may make some people shudder—but not a member of the Physics Club. They are an enthusiastic group with the ability to make pleasure out of something that could have been merely an extension of class room work.

THE EDUCATION CLUB

"I'm not a student teacher, and I don't knit; therefore, I have no topic for conversation", one Senior remarked to another. Student teaching at Woman's College is the milestone that marks the road from double features and hot fudge sundaes to wondering who's pay roll we'll be on this coming fall.

If there is any group working for a purpose on this campus it is the Education Club. Why? It is the common meeting ground for every phase from Physical Education to Art. Composed of earnest students classified as senior teachers and the faculty of the Education Department, this club really pursues a mutual goal. Every effort is made to prepare us before leaving for our respective classrooms—we meet the leading educators of the state; we have groups discussion; and we try combining theory and practical application. Through it all the faculty bears with us in thick and thin. In case anything is forgotten, we have only to turn to this club and its facilities.

Beulah Dare Ormand, PRESIDENT

SPEAKERS CLUB

"Ladies and Gentleman" (here it's usually just "Ladies"), begins the ambitious member of the Speakers Club as she orates before her colleagues.

Some years ago, students all over the country became phonetic conscious. Woman's College did not neglect her soft drawling "So'th'n' " lassies, nor did she neglect her daughters from beyond the Mason-Dixon. A club was organized for those girls interested in facing a group and "stating their case".

Meeting every second Wednesday night, these girls under the supervision of Dr. Kohler, faculty sponsor, have made outstanding progress. The meetings consist of impromptu talks and debates by students and faculty members. This year, the members have been invited to neighboring high schools to serve as judges for debating tournaments, an interesting as well as inspiring activity.

CLASSICAL CLUB

There're some girls on campus who don't groan over their Greek and Latin. There're many girls on campus who love their mythology. There're a lot of girls on campus who really get a kick out of finding out how the ancients did it. It was for these smart and interested girls that the Classical Club was organized on a scholastic basis about three years ago. If you're the type of person who struggled through two years of Latin in high school just because it was required or who starts thinking about Johnny's adorable drawl every time a professor mentions anything that happened more than a month ago, this club is not for you!—you most decidedly would be out of your element and over your head.

The programs this year were built around six lectures given by students covering, in so far as possible, the six major fields of literature as developed by the Greeks: epic poetry, lyric poetry, dramatic poetry, philosophy, history, and oratory (remember that, girls; it might stand you in good stead someday)!

Marilyn Barklew, PRESIDENT

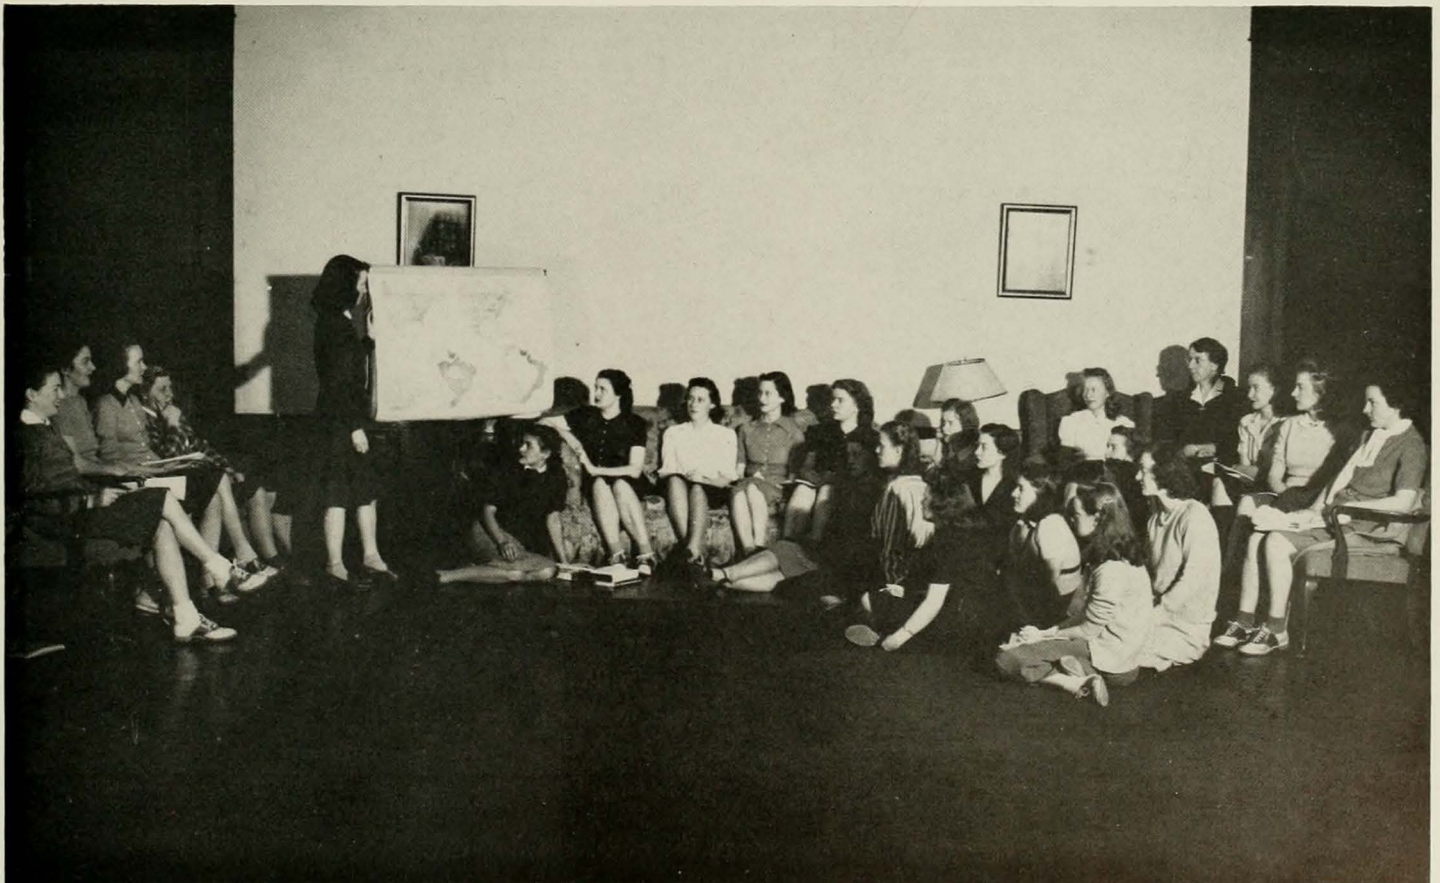

INTERNATIONAL RELATIONS CLUB

Blitzkrieg—war—famine—strikes—defense—Hitler—jolly old England that used to be—These make up the exciting program of the International Relations Club. In this day of propaganda and censoring of foreign news, it is hard to look at the chaotic world objectively; it is even more difficult to view the war impartially. But this the Club has tried to do.

The International Relations Club, financed by the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, has endeavored to touch upon the problem of peace between nations after this nightmare is over. It may seem idealistic and perhaps fanciful for students to attempt to solve problems much too tremendous for the greatest thinkers of our day, but the club works from the viewpoint that mighty oaks from little acorns grow. Who knows but what the solution to the world's problems will arise from such a gathering of stimulated minds?

Katherine Parish, PRESIDENT

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS

"Parlez-vous français?" . . . what a lot you miss if you don't. From the amount of English spoken in this club you would think it were the unknown language. Le Cercle Francais gives girls—with a good scholastic average—an opportunity to become better acquainted with France. . . its people, its culture, and its arts, and to improve their conversational French.

The yearly program of the club includes two distinctive events: the Christmas pageant and the May play, and an effort has been made to present something new and unusual in each of these. This year for the Christmas pageant the club presented the "Pastorale" from the MYSTERE DE LA PASSION written by Arnold Greban in 1452. This was the first time that the "Pastorale", or anything of its kind, has been given in an American college. By the way, M. Hardre is the official sponsor of the club. He directs the pageants and brings the unique songs and manuscripts from his native France.

THE ZOOLOGY FIELD CLUB

(Affiliated with the North Carolina Academy of Science)

The Zoology Field Club wishes to dedicate its page this year to one of its Honorary Members, Dr. Anna M. Gove, who, as college physician, has been associated with Woman's College since the second year of its existence. Her understanding care of the sick and well has established a monument of appreciation and gratitude in the lives of thousands of young women. Her continued advanced study in clinics and hospitals in the United States and Europe, together with her active participation in the work of various national organizations interested in various phases of public health work have helped keep our college among the leaders of American colleges in public health work.

The Zoology Field Club, with student and faculty members, aims to obtain a more thorough knowledge of animal life by means of field trips to various places of special interest and by contributions of individual members. It has sponsored the construction and work of the Carolina Marine Laboratory at Beaufort.

GREENSBORO SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA

The hearty reception given to the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra on its yearly visit to W. C. has shown the desire and enthusiasm of the students for classical music. To supply the demand for more such music, the Greensboro Symphony Orchestra has been formed under the direction of Dean H. Hugh Altvater of the School of Music. The members, sixty in number, are from Woman's College and Greensboro Senior High School. Two concerts, one in the fall, and one as a part of June Graduation exercises are given each year.

MASQUERADERS

Next to being a member of Alpha Psi Omega, the national honorary dramatic society, the highest honor which can be bestowed upon a Playliker is to be tapped into the Masqueraders. To be selected you must be a Playliker, have worked in two fields and on three plays AND—be plenty good! Many a freshman suffers indigestion one night in the fall and one in the spring when she looks up from her plate and sees masked women parading the dining hall. An upper classman hastily assures her that she isn't ready for Dix Hill. . . that it's only "tapping-time" for the venerable order of the Masqueraders. The lucky girls (the ones who are tapped) are given black masks which they must wear for three days (the old members wear gold ones) and are sent home to put on their best bibs-and-tuckers in order to attend a brilliant banquet in their honor at a downtown hotel.

THE YOUNG REPUBLICANS

A little late at the starting line—but we will be there at the finish. There are two sides to every question, and we hereby organized to make The Young Republicans known.

Interested in international as well as national politics, our club has had a most prosperous and beneficial year—prosperous, in that more and more girls have become interested in our functions; beneficial, in that the founders of this organization as well as our new members have been exposed to a brief yet informative study of politics and government.

As a club for Young Republicans, we are frank in saying our location puts us at a disadvantage—we've learned the definition of that term DYED-IN-THE-WOOL. The fact that we have had competition has only made it more interesting. And to say the least, it has supplied circumstances for a more well rounded study of our nation's political systems.

THE YOUNG DEMOCRATS

November 4, 1940, a date that made its place among others that march gaily across blackboards. This one will come to college along with 1066 and 1492. Yes, we celebrated the above mentioned—and so did everybody else—or we knew the reason why. It was some night—victims ducked under cold showers and tossed into “pie-beds”.

Not many years ago, a need for an understanding and appreciation of our system of government was felt among the undergraduates of Woman’s College. Just where did we, as women voters stand and what was our future as politicians? The glorious phrases, “of the people, by the people, and for the people” were words the masses dwelt on, but what did they honestly mean? There seemed no better way to find out than open forums and those underestimated meetings around the soap box. Henceforth, The Young Democrats’ Club.

Politics, platforms, Australian Ballots, and parliamentary procedure—they all assume meaning, if attacked with YE OLD SCIENTIFIC APPROACH. Oh, we’re very scientific, but we did enjoy that event in 1940.

ELEANOR ECHOLS MILLS

Greensboro, North Carolina

The charm and graciousness of the traditional lady of the deep South becomes not just tradition when you know "Echie". Her loveliness has made living and working with a wonderful "little lady" something to write home about.

To the girl with the lovely voice and beautiful eyes—we'll always remember as a leader in the Class of '41.

Known to all of us as "Buzz", she has lived up to that old saying that a girl with a nickname must be popular. With a smile and a gay greeting, the President of our Senior Class has endeared herself to both students and faculty. With her initiative and capability, she has ruled wisely and well.

ELIZABETH FALLS

Shelby, North Carolina

PEGGY DEAN

Winston-Salem, North Carolina

It's "Peepye's" wit that makes a day brighter, a class peppier, and an editorial worth reading. Peggy is that conscientious person who has edited the CAROLINIAN with such brilliancy all this year. Along with that full time job, she has done well academically and has had time enough to spare to be one of the most friendly girls on campus.

We who have met "Annie B.," know her as an outstanding campus personality. This Eastern Carolinian, known for her likeable and friendly disposition, is Vice-President of our Student Body. It is recognized at W.C. that this job is one of the most difficult positions on campus. Annie after much previous experience in office has made of it an excellent success.

ANNIE BRASWELL

Rocky Mount, North Carolina

ELIZABETH PATTEN

Raleigh, North Carolina

Everybody loves our "Ibby". From her Freshman year she was destined to become the President of the Student Body. She has that rare capacity of sincere friendship and genuine hospitality to all. She typifies all those virtues that we aspire to be. "Ibby" is the possessor of charm, beauty, and intelligence. We, without hesitancy, predict a brilliant future for her.

Judy, as Chief Marshal, has held this year a position that requires patience, charm, graciousness, and capability. She has made a great success for she is the possessor of all these requirements. We have been proud to recognize her as our official hostess. She has not only won the admiration of the marshals of whom she is in charge but of the entire student body.

FRANCES DANIEL

Henderson, North Carolina

We've read stories about blue-eyed, curly-headed brunettes with one of those PLUS PERSONALITIES that makes living with them a privilege and a pleasure, "Fran" Daniel is just one up on those story book heroines in having the ability to work with people that comes from being one-half idealist and one-half realist.

As one of those girls we all like to know, Fran has a smile that makes any day grow brighter. Never lose that smile, Fran.

In Bess we find a truly well-rounded individual. As President of the Y.W.C.A., she has proved to the students that the "Y" is a vital part of our campus life. Bess has won the acclaim for being a lovely girl with an equally beautiful personality. Having been a leader from the first, she has executed her present position with wonderful success.

MAY DAY

on the Campus

Gladys Stedman, Queen of the May.

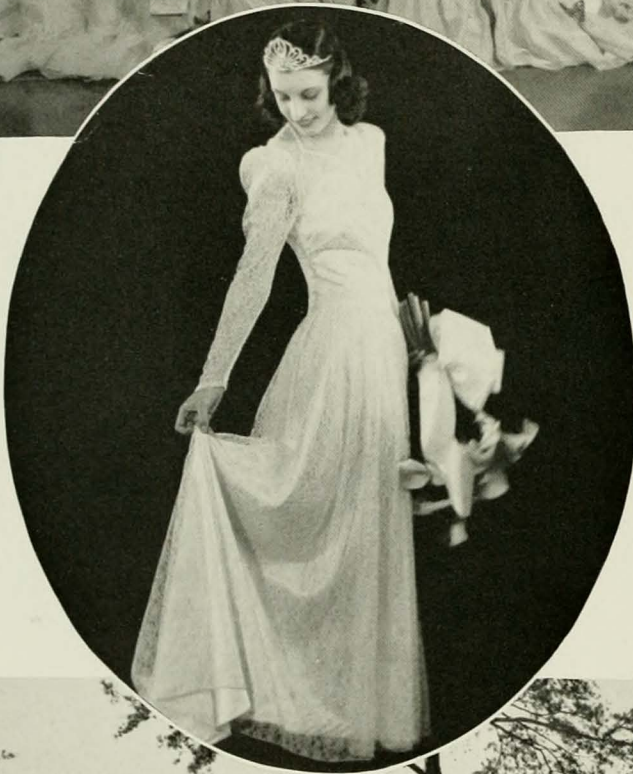

MAY DAY

Once upon a time, 'twas in May, the year nineteen hundred, forty and one, loveliness and beauty came to rule at Woman's College. Though the world rocked with wars and rumors of wars, two thousand five hundred girls, their parents, and their faculty paused to pay tribute to youth in all its glory. Basking in the dreaminess that hung over campus, those parents and faculty felt the tingle of success and pride. To the student body, thirteen girls, chosen to represent their ideals of beauty and charm, that May Day left its cool fragrant impression—"A thing of beauty is a Joy forever".

Now it happened on that day, messengers went through the kingdom proclaiming the king would visit the new lake that he had built for his subjects, and he asked for his people to join him. It was a gala occasion when all the choir sang and

AND THER EK WERE MAYDES OF HONESTEE TWEYE.

AND SHE WAS CLAD IN WHYTE.

the palace dancers waltzed among the villagers, and the lake sparkled and patted its shores.

There dwelt in this kingdom a lovely princess and her chosen court—known for not only their physical beauty but also for their worthy standards of young womanhood. They came on this day to view the lake, and the regent passing among his people was struck by the exceeding loveliness of the princess. Ah, he was not a lone admirer, as there chanced to be in this kingdom the noted Prince Charming, who was by no means unaware of the mortal queen of the graces.

Now my story ends—the princess crowned as fairest of the fair was claimed as queen of the kingdom, and yes, dear readers, as queen of Prince Charming. And, complete with prince and crown, Queen Gladys led her recessional through the village of beauty and love.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

MISS GIBSON, WE SALUTE YOU! To you, as president of the Athletic Association for the year '40-'41, the student body expresses our deepest appreciation and respect. Feeling the association, as a culmination of all athletics on campus, lacked real capacities to meet our needs, Edna, her cabinet, her advisory board, and Miss Martus as faculty head set about aiming at a higher goal. Their theory was simple: if an organization doesn't come up to par—then serve us a reorganization. At this point, the Athletic Association of Woman's College has gone in for organized (all right, then reorganized) labor and the old regime takes a back seat while the new youth takes the lead. It is the privilege of the 1941 PINE NEEDLES to introduce the Recreation Association of the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina (nice start!). Quoting from the new Constitution; Article I. Section 2: "The purpose of the association shall be to provide opportunities for participation and leadership in recreational activities and to promote interest in recreation." As to membership—that is an excellent example of the democratic basic theories of the new organization—active members who participate have the right to vote; associate members, all individuals who are enrolled in the college, and all groups who are interested in recreation; and honorary members who will be elected by the association.

As the OLD order goes out, so goes the individual point system. Points are now awarded to the winning dormitory according to its own activities. Individual recognition is based on an honor society made up of eight Physical Education Majors and sixteen non-majors elected by the association and the faculty.

Now, we understand the battle royal that has been going on in Rosenthal Gymnasium—but believe us, all you foremothers of our new constitution—it was well worth the while.

HOCKEY

"During the whole of a dull, dark, and soundless day . . . when the clouds hung oppressively low in the heavens," the whistle blows a sharp resounding blast—IT'S TIME FOR HOCKEY.

Betty Lippman, student head, is plenty proud of the showing Woman's College made in local Hockey Play Days at Guilford and Duke.

GOLF CLUB

Basketball, tennis, and hockey seasons may come and go, but golfing enthusiasts trek the course the year around. In spite of the pocket edition course, the equipment is good and training stiff enough to keep would-be-golfers in top form learning to putt, drive, and make holes eventually, if not in one. Last spring ninety students became muscle bound in their attempt to become smooth sports women.

Every spring an intramural tournament is held, and the golf clubbers swing wicked golf clubs—if not after the fashion of Bobby Jones—at any rate, after a fashion. Now young hopefuls are making plans for a fall tournament—if they keep their fighting spirit, Sedgfield will be a thing of the past.

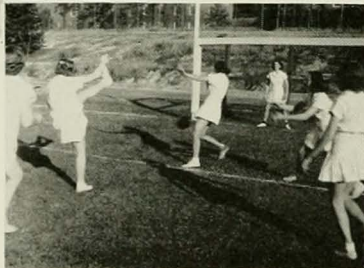

VOLLEY BALL

"Serve!" "Help it over!" "Set it up and let's go!" . . . 'cause it's volley ball season at W. C. and everybody's rarin' to go. This sport is well liked on the campus because it requires more enthusiasm than skill. There are two types of volley ball played here: (1) giant volley ball in which a huge ball about the size of two pumpkins is used, and (2) regular volley ball played with a smaller ball. In the fast footwork of the enthusiastic players can be seen the beginning of jitterbugging . . . so come on, girls, and get some practice.

"COME ON, SHOW SOME PEP."

WITH THAT KICK YOU OUGHT TO MAKE THE FOOTBALL TEAM.

SPEEDBALL

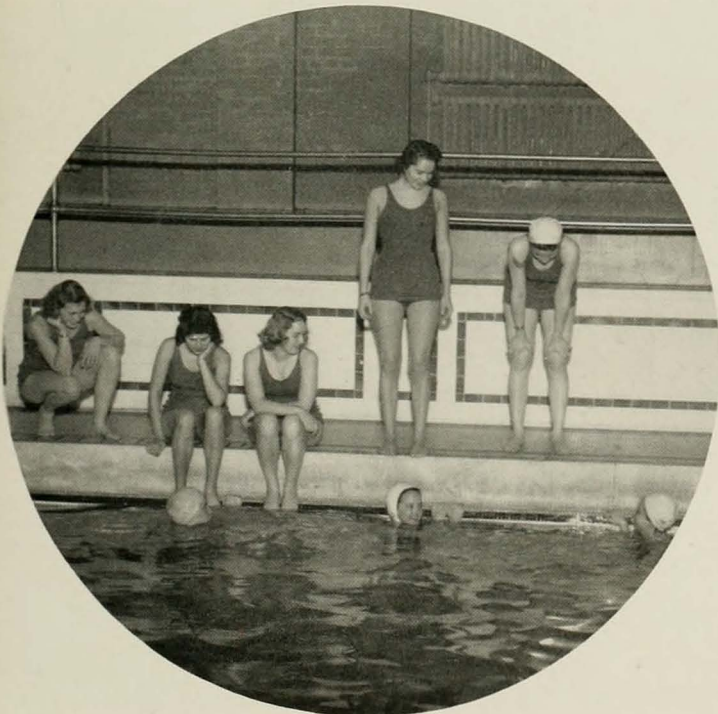

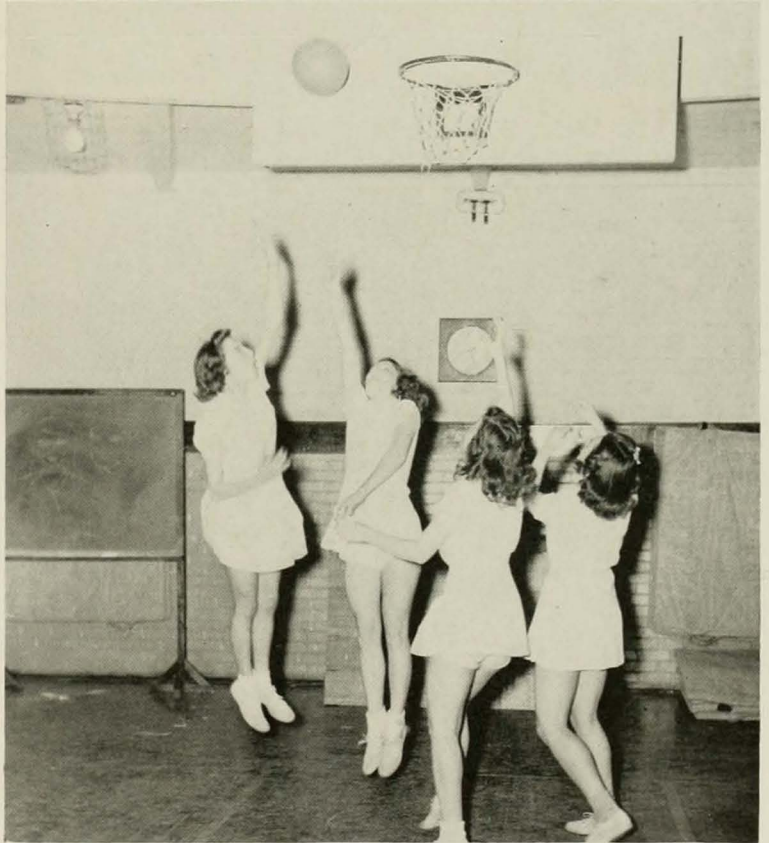

Speedball — a popular fall sport — is a combination of basketball and soccer with a few elements of football. It's a fast team game which really uses up all your excess energy . . . as the weary players can testify at the close of a game. Among the faithful spectators on the sidelines in the afternoons are "Tar" and "Topper" (the black cocker spaniels of Miss Thompson and Miss Martus) who obligingly chase the ball for the girls.

BASKETBALL

That fast moving, energy burning activity, commonly known as basketball, definitely has its place at Woman's College. Changes were made this year that kept competition at a fast pace. Since basketball is an intramural sport between dormitories, dining halls and town students, it was decided the teams be divided into four groups: the Elliot, Phillips, Alexander, and Barkley leagues. Preliminary games were played within each league, the winning team of each game was awarded two points. To make a long play fast, the winning team of each league played in the finals—a double elimination tournament in which a team was eliminated only by a twofold defeat. The play-off was between Shaw Dormitory of the Phillips League and North Spencer of the Barkley League. The Barkley League reports victory—it might have been on the theory of positive acceleration, or could it be Dr. Barkley got his ideas from those mazes of white rats. Anyway, Captain Ruth Cash and Dr. Barkley were some kind of happy on the night of March 18th.

Basketball Battle Cry: Get your feet off the floor and let's go-ooo! . . . all to the tune of a tin whistle and to the four-four time of a stop watch.

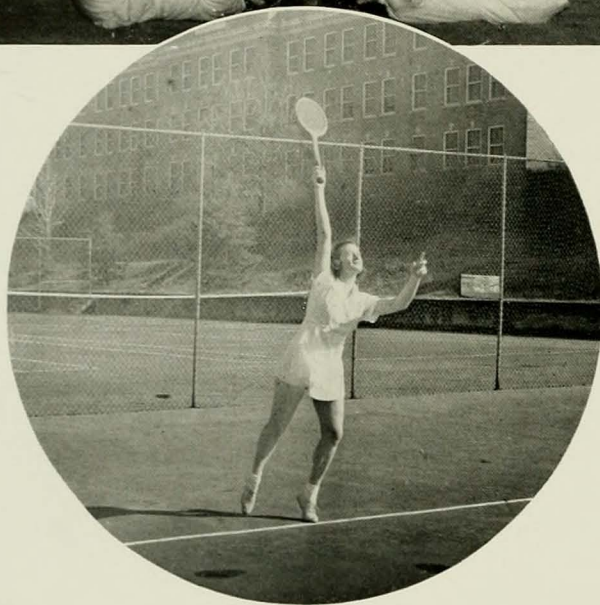

SWIMMING

This year the competition in the after-school swimming is between four leagues composed of residence halls. League scores are carefully kept and—believe you me—the rivalry is keen! There are nine student coaches who supervise practices for individual improvement in form and speed, referee water games, and teach beginners. The climax of the swimming season is the final meet in the latter part of March.

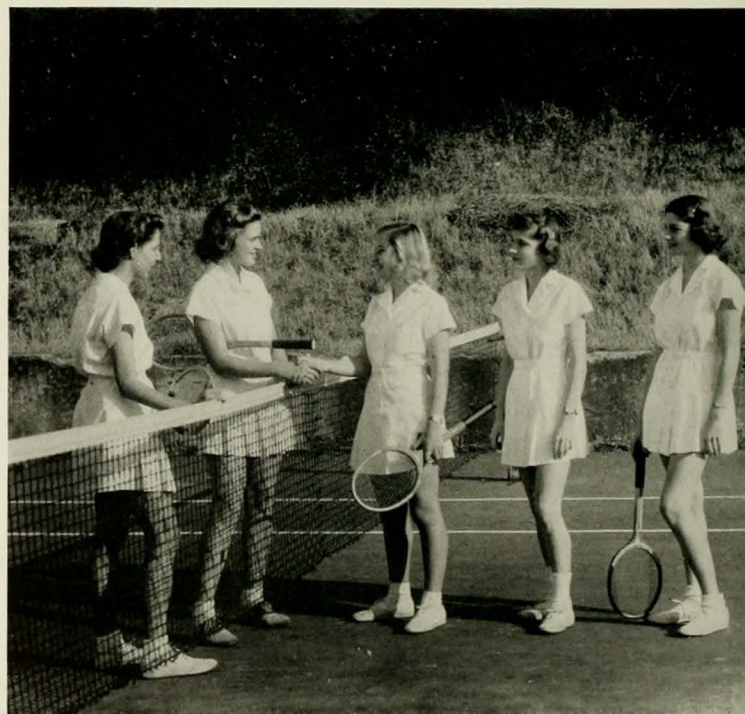

GYMNASTICS

As in most of the other after-school sports, competition in gymnastics was on a residence hall—or league-basis this year. We're very fond of gymnastics here, and the annual Gym Meet in the spring is eagerly awaited by participants and spectators alike. This event is a regular round-up of sports, and follows a different theme each year. The gym is always gaily decorated, the band plays, and the girls yell themselves hoarse. Patriotically keeping in step with the current times, the theme of the Gym Meet held March 7 was "Old Glory". In addition to the regular apparatus, competition, and the stunts, groups of girls showed the influence and contributions of the European countries on American activities. In another part they demonstrated typical North American forms of recreation. Girls wearing red, white, and blue kerchiefs and representing various branches of recreational activities brought the program to a grand finale by forming an American Flag of Sports. Everybody gave lusty final cheer and Gym Meet was over for another year.

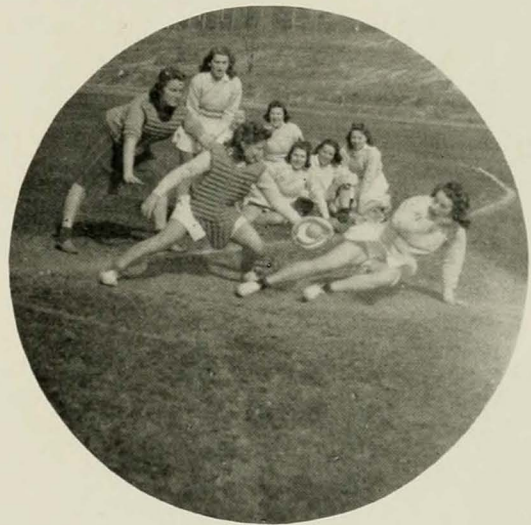

FALL TENNIS

Sixty-four girls armed with sixty-four different back strokes tripped across the swell-elegant tennis courts at Woman's College in the fall of '40. Mary Margaret Binford, that state champion, whom Woman's College is proud to call her daughter, as student head of Tennis, and Miss Davis as faculty head report the results of a most successful year. The tournament got plenty of attention, and it was a hard fight. As winners of the doubles, we give you Marjorie Wright and Mary Bell Price. Dorothy Lewis was the single's champion—these little ladies know their game of love!

BASEBALL

Spring has definitely arrived here when Drs. Barkley and Shaftesbury leave their labs a wee bit early and head for the baseball diamond! Baseball is the sport everybody loves, and Woman's College students are no exception to the rule. Perhaps the most exciting event during the season is the faculty-varsity game which gives the faculty an opportunity to forget classrooms and return to their playdays. The second varsity team plays the women faculty members, and the first team takes on the men. At the end of the season it is with a heavy heart that the last batter steps back from the plate and slings her bat away as the umpire yells "Strike three! Yer out!" We're lucky in that we don't have to go crosstown to a ball park to see a game 'cause it's "one . . . two . . . three strikes—you're out!" on W. C.'s diamond most any spring day.

SLIDE, KELLEY, SLIDE

ARCHERY

The desire to become a cross between a "Robin Hood" and a Cupid spread like wildfire over campus this year. Or maybe, it was those snazzy new high socks—anyway, there are lots of girls AIMING at the bull's eye.

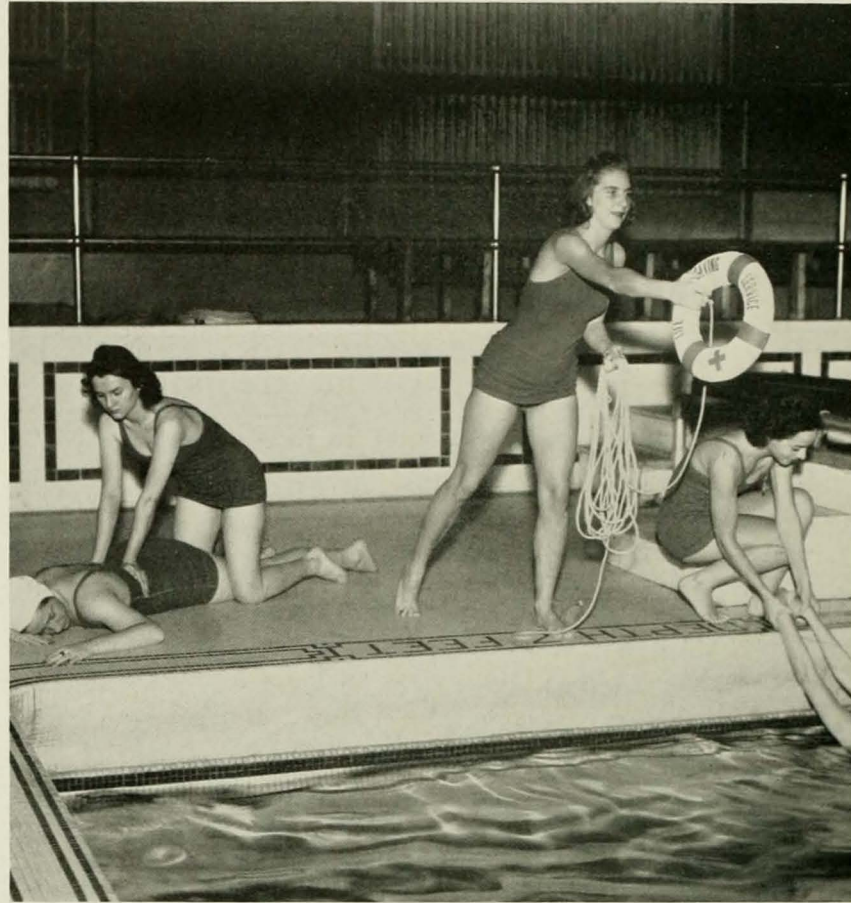

Archery was, after a time, conquered—well all right, the fundamental skills were acquired and these cupids and their magic bows turned to Archery Golf. A "hole in one" wasn't the club's average, but they did come up to PAR.

LIFE SAVING

Those all important people up there with insignias are—putting it plainly—Life Savers. They're not the kind that come in packages, either. These girls worked under Martha Charnock and Miss Sheldon for three months this year. After three months of work, fifteen hours of instruction and two hours of tests, each girl was subject to the written test and the water workout according to standard Red Cross requirements. Out of the twenty-seven young ladies that started as beginners, nineteen had successful outcomes. To say the least, these Senior Life Savers meet the American Red Cross requirements or else.

After meeting twice a week for the allotted time and passing all these minor details, these Life Savers are eligible to wear the Senior Insignias on their bathing suits. Just remember, next time you're trying out that two-piece creation, pick out a sponsor with a snazzy red cross in the audience.

SPORTS DAY

In case you didn't get all the dope about Sports Day in the Society write-up, let's have another bird's-eye view. That is what it will have to be because everything and everybody are in such a whirl, that finding one's self proves difficult. Anyway—there comes that colossal afternoon in early May when classes are dismissed and there is one mad rush to the athletic fields. Competition rages among the four societies and between the faculty and students. Dr. Jackson distributes those hair-ribbons that designate each girl's society. Then off said hair-ribbon goes to compete in everything from bridge to box-hockey—a wonderful experience—damp curls(?) and broken fingernails, for once, get little consideration.

Every day has its climax, and Sport's Day has its Student-Faculty Baseball game. Dr. Graham, well-loved figure on our campus is quite the box office attraction—Dr. Graham is one of the active attractions—and we do mean ACTIVE.

After the game, the fair ladies rush home to get their glamour restored and well—you'd never recognize us at the banquet. 'Mid candlelight and contented sighs, the cup is awarded to the president of the winning society.

Polly Sattler, chairman for Sports Day of 1941 reports that this will be the last Society Sports Day since our Athletic Activities will soon be on dormitory basis.

SQUARE DANCE

Sophisticated moderns still love to trip the light fantastic in fashions of yore judging from the enrollment in the Square Dance Club. One hundred and eighty girls—lean, lanky, and long; short, fat, and dumpy; and just plain girls have lost weight and awkwardness learning different folk dances from all over the country. Curtsyng, stamping, clapping, and shouting are all in order—square dancers are certainly given ample opportunity to vent their animal spirits or at least expel their excess energy.

Caller of the figures for this bunch of young rustics is Miss Henrietta Thompson who, it's rumored, swings no mean leg herself. Sara Queen upheld her old North State by introducing some of the dances from the hills of western North Carolina. It is a pity the campus affords no jug players to give the final touch of atmosphere. . . Sara Queen, incidentally, is the big wig on campus who has danced before none other than King George and Queen Elizabeth of England when that royal couple visited the capital of the United States.

Each year more and more girls are striving to recapture lost atmosphere, to rekindle past joys, to rejuvenate age old customs—all through the medium of square dancing. If the number continues its present trend, we may well expect, on returning as alumnae, to witness a society or class square dance.

As a grand finale, crescendo or what have you—the club sponsors a square dance to which dancers, by then well versed in the ramifications of northern, southern, eastern, and western folk steps, are invited.

BOOT N' SPUR

Just as fascinatin' as the club's name are these charter member horse women. There's something plenty smooth about whipcords and boots that are just a little the worse for wear. Riding (horses y' understand) has long been a popular activity at Woman's College, but those of us who recognized the difference between a curbed bit and a snaffle bit only on close inspection hadn't a prayer. This year, however, red headed "Crouchie", as club president, has come to the rescue of the saddle blazers. "Crouchie" is running her club on a planned program basis that takes in the activities of the advanced horse lovers as well as those young ladies who eat from the mantel after the first few trials.

Supper rides, Polo games at Southern Pines, the Gym Kannah, and lectures gave the Boot n' Spur an "A 1" program. And then there was the Spring Sedgefield Horse Show.

THE ARCHERY CLUB

Promoting archery throughout North Carolina is the worthwhile purpose of the Archery Club. These girls are required to meet the Junior Columbia Round Score. It's no cinch! If you get any illusions about your "bow" ability and wish to try the Senior Columbia Round—and if you are successful, you get a pin that proves you are.

This year's club became dissatisfied in challenging home talent—hence an Archery Play Day was sponsored by the club. This event brought out the Archers from the nearby colleges to participate in a Senior Columbia Round, in Archery Golf, and Clout Shooting. Val Anderson reports the traditional fun was had by all and the club has become KNOWN.

ORCHESIS

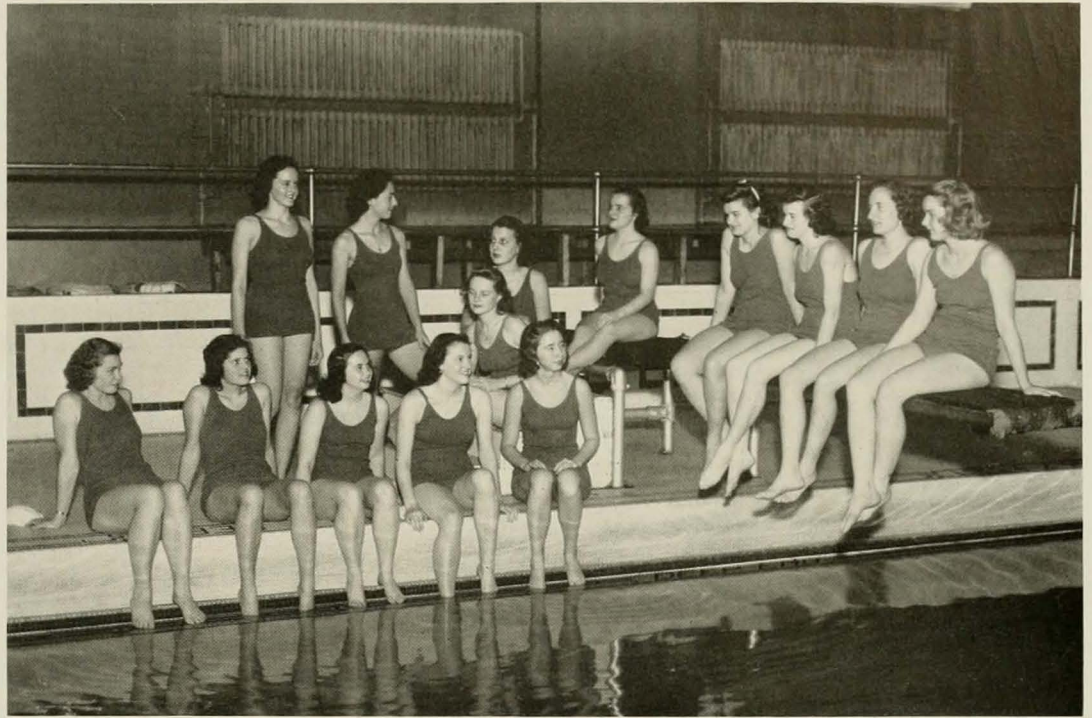

W. C.'s Modern Dance group really stays on its toes!—none of this sitting down and taking things easy for them. They work hard and, consequently, get results. You may be sure that on the chapel day that they dance for the student body there isn't an empty seat to be found in the auditorium. This March the group did a remarkable thing: under the direction of Miss Jean Brownlee, faculty adviser for the group, it conducted the first Modern Dance symposium ever held in the South. During the morning Miss Brownlee held classes in technique and composition. The following schools were represented in the guest dance group which took part in the symposium: Duke University, St. Mary's, University of North Carolina, Guilford College, Peace, High Point College, and Winthrop and Limestone in South Carolina. A highlight of the day was an address by Miss Catherine Littlefield, the founder and organizer of the Littlefield ballet.

EDITH GOODMAN

DOLPHIN

How's your form—good enough for Dolphin? Then, my friend, you are plenty good. Eleanor Wade, that water lovin' athlete, has been putting the Dolphins and their understudies, the Seals, through the ropes this year. With the Dolphin pageant as the main project for the year 1940-1941 these water nymphs have concentrated on form swimming, stunts, and floating figures. Needless to say, the Dolphin Pageant is one of the outstanding campus performances. The timing, the figures, even the lighting are all pretty swell; the swimming and diving are the very best—and that is something to write home about.

CLOGGING CLUB

"All right, you amateur Adele Astaires, pick up your feet." One, two, three PERIOD. For the first months the club works on the fundamentals of tap dancing, and the routines they struggle through would make our heads swim—these same routines have that effect on one's feet too. After the fundamentals, come the individual and group dances in preparation for the big show given this year in Chapel in addition to the traditional floor show after Sport's Day Banquet. The theme of the 1941 program was THE BALL (or brawl—take your choice); and the dances were plenty smoo-ooth. Teresa Rowe and Betty Lou Houser gave the solo numbers; duet honors went to Margaret Woosley and Irene Levinson and to Matrena Lockhart and Imogene Cashion.

Yes, all in all, we've got what it takes at W. C.

WORLD MERRY-GO-ROUND: 1940-41

Exactly one year after England's formal entrance into the Second World War on September 3, 1939, President Franklin Delano Roosevelt informed the Congress of the United States that fifty "over-age" destroyers would be traded for bases in the British New World territory. Declaring that Congress should have passed on the deal, Wendell Lewis Willkie, Republican candidate for the presidency, was the most spot-lighted opponent of Roosevelt's action. But all comments on the trade soon subsided as the debate on conscription, which had been raging since June 20, began to draw to a close. New upheavals in Europe echoed ominously across the water: General Von Antonescu, friend of the Von Guardists, set up a military dictatorship in Rumania; King Carol, leaving his throne to his son, Michael, fled into exile, and all-out bombing of London began. On September 14, Congress passed the Burke-Wadsworth Selective Service Bill, the first peace-time draft bill in the history of the United States to be given the approval of the nation's legislative body.

And on this same day, 2,217 of the Greater University Students began to live and move by bells as they made their way to classes that marked the opening of the forty-ninth year for the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina, the third largest woman's college in the United States. The Freshman Class, numbering 625 (though smaller by 75 to 100 than last year's Freshman Class) was the largest. The 535 Sophomores were headed by Gladys Sessoms; the 475 Juniors, by President Polly Sattler; and the 402 Seniors, by President Elizabeth "Buzz" Falls.

A faculty of some 250 members initiated us to our book work while sixteen days later members of the Cornelian, Adelphian, Dikean, and Aletheian Societies informally initiated freshmen and transfers who with a weak cry of joy greeted the end of this day of ironing and hanging curtains, sweeping rooms, and writing love letters for everybody and her sister. For the first time in thirteen years the student body at the Woman's College began the term with its ten major officers all residents of North Carolina. Elizabeth Patten, New Bern; Annie Braswell, Rocky Mount; Catherine Hilderman, Southern Pines; Phyllis Crooks, Concord, headed our government as President, Vice-President, Secretary, Treasurer, respectively of the student body. Official hostess for the college was Judy Paschal, Wilson; and THE CAROLINIAN was edited by Peggy Dean, Winston-Salem; CORADDI, by Margaret Coit, Greensboro; and PINE NEEDLES, by Roberta Dunlap, Wadesboro. Bess Johnson, Henderson, headed the Y.W.C.A. and Edna Gibson, Laurinburg, the Athletic Association. If it were to be a great day for the Irish, it would certainly be a great year for Woman's College students.

As we settled down to a new term's work, events throughout the world made it difficult for us to think only of textbooks and cake from home. Meanwhile, Willkie, despite the incessant rally of vegetables and frozen eggs, continued to criticize the New Deal and to pledge himself to defense and to aid for Britain. On September 24, Berlin was bombed for almost four hours—its largest air-raid since the war began—and attacks on Dakar, capital of French West Africa, were resumed. The following day, President Roosevelt ordered exports of scrap iron and steel restricted to America and Great Britain. Japan threatened to support the Axis if the United States entered the war; and on the twenty-seventh day of September she signed a ten-year pact "of a military and economic character" with Germany and Italy. All these events brought back memories of the war days of 1918 when in long skirts and high-top shoes the students of the State Normal and Industrial College for Women pitched hay and hoed corn right on our campus grounds.

England opened the month of October with a five-hour attack on Berlin. Ten days later, Germany declared "total war" on England as LUFTWAFFE attacks were made on more than fifty London districts. Woman's College Seniors, on the other hand, in accordance with a thirty-eight-year-old custom elected their most outstanding members: Elizabeth Patten, Annie Braswell, Bess Johnson, Frances Daniel, Eleanor Echols Mills, Judy Paschal, Peggy Dean, and "Buzz" Falls. On the third, Jane Cowl captivated the entire student body as she opened our 1940-41 series of lecture entertainment by speaking on "An Actress Speaks to Her Audience". Two days later (October 5) in recognition of the work of Charles Duncan McIver, we donned white frocks for the traditional celebration of Founder's Day. Mrs. Charles Duncan McIver, wife of the founder; Dr. Julius I. Foust, second President of the college and President Emeritus; Dr. Anna Gove and Miss Mary Petty, members of the original college faculty; Miss Minnie Jamison, student of the college in its first year; and Dr. Frank Porter Graham were special guests at the service held at 11:15 in Aycock Auditorium. The principle address was delivered by Major L. P. McLendon after Miss Clara Byrd had read the traditional "In Memoriam".

Our first university sermon of the year was given Sunday, October 6, by Dr. Mary Ely Lyman. Four days later, Clifton Fadiman, the second to appear on our lecture entertainment series, disappointed an eager audience, who came to hear about "Inside Radio", by taking most of the time to tell us of HIS program—INFORMATION PLEASE. The sixteenth day of October bore a two-fold significance to the girls of Woman's College; for during the day some 16,400,000 young American men registered for a democratic selective service; and in the evening Sigrid Undset, Norwegian novelist and Nobel prize winner, spoke on "A Novelist Looks at Literature". Though her definite accent made her speech almost totally incomprehensible, even those who left early were impressed with her dignity.

Meanwhile debate over the presidential candidates waxed loud and hot on the campus. Margaret Coit, who was recognized as both the authority on and the mouthpiece for Willkie, virtually headed the Republican campaign on the campus. Gladys Tillet, staunch Roosevelt supporter, met Margaret in informal debate to set the student body right on the issues.

But on October 19, world affairs and presidential candidates were forgotten completely as classes were dismissed at ten o'clock to speed up celebration of Greater University Day. At exactly 2:30 P. M. the football teams of State and Carolina clashed in Riddick Stadium in Raleigh with Carolina winning 13 to 7 over State. Special sponsors for the day from Woman's College included Elizabeth Patten, Annie Braswell, Catherine Hilderman, Phyllis Crooks, Doris Shaffer, "Buzz" Falls, Polly Sattler, and Gladys Sessoms. Between halves our own "lbbby" made a little speech which she concluded with a general invitation: "And please remember, come to see us any time you can". But three months later this harmless little invitation became the basis of an editorial in the Raleigh NEWS AND OBSERVER, Sunday, February 2, when Miss Patten was quoted as having said: "An' please remember, come to see us inny time you kin". Whereupon our bold and valiant Peepye devoted a lengthy editorial in the CAROLINIAN in which she corrected the editor thus: "An' please remimbAH, come to see us inny time you CAN".

Several days later in October, Gladys Stedman was elected May Queen. And on October 22, France was reported to be debating war on England as Hitler received Vice-Premier Laval "somewhere in France" reputedly to secure the French navy in action against England. That night in Aycock auditorium, Norman Cousins warned that "American citizens need information".

When John L. Lewis, head of the C.I.O. threatened to quit the committee if Willkie lost, Margaret Coit and her followers deemed the election "cinched" in the Republican's favor. Rooseveltites on the campus solemnly forecast that the American public would certainly prefer Roosevelt to Lewis. Differences, however, were promptly put aside on October 26, as nearly the entire student body attended the first Playlikers production of the term, "The Warrior's Husband". Monday morning both faculty and students turned again to severe reality. Italy, after a three-hour ultimatum, had invaded Greece. Premier Metaxas declared "the moment has arrived for Greece to fight for her independence and honor". The following day, on October 29, Britain began to rush aid to Greece: Hitler conferred with Mussolini in Florence; and Secretary of War, Henry L. Stimson, blind-folded, drew from the goldfish bowl used in 1917 the draft number—158. That day, however, Woman's College students will remember as the day Dr. Frank Porter Graham spoke in chapel on "University and National Defense". And it was with a deeper sobriety that the student body met next evening for their first mass meeting of the term to consider a problem close at hand—an honor system. Rhea Sikes, "speaking for the followers, the ordinary students" offered "three cheers for honor". But at the suggestion of Helen Morgan, further discussion and final action were postponed for the next mass meeting.

At last came the day when the presidential issue was settled, not only in a national, but also a campus election. While some fifty million people flocked to their voting headquarters, some fourteen hundred of us, in a mock election sponsored by the Social Action Department of the "Y" cast 1,034 votes for Franklin Roosevelt, 362 for Wendell Willkie, and 3 for Norman Thomas. Next day, some college supporters of Willkie declared for their loss of faith in human nature. But according to editorial columns, a trend for unity swept the nation. The day following the election, eight delegates from our midst were sent to press conventions. To Detroit, Michigan, went Roberta Dunlap and Eleanor Southerland representing the PINE NEEDLES, and Peggy Dean and Marty Cockfield representing the CAROLINIAN. To Durham, North Carolina, we sent Margaret Coit and Frances Staton of CORADDI, and Frances Newsom and Mae Duckworth of the CAROLINIAN. While these delegates were favorably impressing delegates from other colleges, Dr. B. B. Kendrick, head of our own History Department, was elected President of the Southern Historical Association at a meeting in Charleston, South Carolina.

The Red Cross drive on the campus opened just the day Rumania experienced its worst earthquake in history. Tragedy was great on November 10, for Key Pittman, head of the United States Senate Committee of Foreign Affairs died at 3:35 in the morning, E.S.T., and Neville Chamberlain, former prime minister of England, died seven hours and fifty-five minutes later. Pierre Lukosdutz and Senia Nemenoff duo-pianists opened our concert season on November 12, the very day when the second issue of the FORT BRAGG POST published a column, "The Voice of Femininity" by our very own "Jo" Howard. Four days after the Rumanian quake it was reported that Germany was still getting her oil supply from Rumania. That same day the British industrial city of Coventry was the target of one of the most horrible and most devastating bombings of the war.

Artistic and social events, nevertheless, moved forward rapidly on our campus. On November 17, there was begun a series of music recitals to honor Dr. Wade R. Brown, former Dean of the School of Music. The recitals, it was announced, were to be annual affairs. The following Thursday, with Frances Henry as chairman, "the secret Junior-Freshman ceremony"—"the merging of the silver"—was held according to custom in Peabody Park amphitheatre. International Week-end, November 23-24, saw students from fifteen countries come together at Woman's College on the same week-end of Rumania's signing the Berlin-Tokyo-Rome pact. Under the leadership of Nancy Ferguson, this third annual International Week-end was pronounced "an increasing success".

About this time Woman's College girls read a prize joke in the TAR AND FEATHERS submitted by Thomas Huske Vance who heard it from Marilyn Barkelew who heard it from Dr. C. C. Jernigan who heard it from. . . Well, anyway, by the time the prize—a carton of Live-Savers—was duly divided; it was sink or swim for the original joker. And then a day of turkey and no classes was hailed on November 28, the date set by Governor Clyde R. Hoey for North Carolina's Thanksgiving. And the Freshman Class chose their first leaders the following day when they elected Becky Beasley, Dorothy Levis, and Lois Phillips to the legislature and Elizabeth Thrower as cheer leader.

The second University Sermon of the year held a new interest for us on the first day of December, for the speaker was none other than the father of our own Joan Feldman. Rabbi Feldman's sermon and Erica Morini's violin concert the next evening prefaced our Christmas season which opened formally on December 6 and 7 with the Play-Likers' production of "Family Portrait". On the eighth, a new organization was initiated on the campus when, under the sponsorship of Masqueraders and under the leadership of Wilbur Dorsett, a number of girls met to organize a radio script writing group. The following day saw the organization of the American History discussion group which was first established late last term. Of all clubs on the campus, this was the only one without a faculty sponsor. Dr. W. C. Jackson reflected glory on our college when he was elected, on December 11, Vice-President of the Southern Association of Colleges for Women. Soon the Woman's College students to be represented in 1941's WHO'S WHO IN AMERICAN COLLEGES AND UNIVERSITIES were chosen: Seniors—Johanna Boet, Anne Boyette, Peggy Dean, Bess Johnson, Ellen Magill, Helen Morgan, Doris Shaffer, Gladys Stedman, Gladys Tillett; Juniors—Mae Duckworth, Roberta Dunlap, Mary Eppes, Catherine Hilderman, Carol Hall, Annis Hines, Nancy Ferguson, Charlotte Moseley, Aileen Belk, and Polly Sattler.

Meanwhile, the people of Europe, Asia, and Africa were preparing for a bitter Christmas. Attention was turned chiefly on the British who were making gains in Africa and the Greeks, in the Balkans. American Literature students who were studying Poe about this time began to change the tense in that one: "The glory that WAS Greece".

Those who had not yet caught the spirit of Christmas were thoroughly aroused in chapel on December 10 when Dr. Frederick Koch, on his annual Christmas-tide tour of the United States, read a selection from Dickens' A CHRISTMAS CAROL for the two hundredth time! Five days later the college choir gave the annual Christmas concert with this year's theme, "Christmas Music Through the Ages". Good fairies were making life extraordinarily sweet as they began making up each others beds! Christmas festivities in the campus were climaxed Friday night, December 20, with the traditional Sophomore Christmas Pageant and dormitory sing. It was a bleak, soundless campus Sunday afternoon: not one of the 2,217 students remained in the dorms; for this year it was a regulation that all must spend the Christmas season off the college grounds.

Christmas joys promptly became memories on January 6, as Woman's College girls trotted to their first classes of the new year. This same day, President Roosevelt reoriented our view of world affairs in his annual message to Congress.

Declaring that the United States would continue to aid Britain, the President added: ". . . we look forward to a world founded upon four essential human freedoms . . . freedom of speech and expression—everywhere in the world; freedom of every person to worship God in his own way—everywhere in the world; freedom from want—everywhere in the world; freedom from fear—everywhere in the world". Such a world, maintained the President, was "attainable in our time and generation". We wondered—hoped—knew that we all would do what we could to make such a world attainable. Three days later at noon, Melville Broughton was inaugurated Governor of North Carolina. Within a month, he was to inaugurate several policies that affected even us. The same evening Reve Dussaqa spoke on "A South American's View of South America". But at this time, all our thoughts and glances into the future were focused on the examination schedule. Dr. Jackson, however, offered words of good cheer and immense comfort in chapel the following Tuesday when he looked deep into the past and revealed that the Woman's College has been graduating classes for fifty years and—does not propose to desist from said activity. On Reading Day—January 16—college students and faculty lost a great educator: Dr. John H. Cook, for twenty-two years head of our Department of Education, died at his home at 5:30 in the afternoon—one hour after suffering a heart attack in his office in Curry Building. In less than a month after his death, one of Dr. Cook's greatest hopes was realized: on February 11, Teachers' Retirement became law. All of Dr. Cook's efforts had not been in vain.

The following day, we helped to realize one of President Roosevelt's great hopes by beginning our contributions to the March of Dimes. Examinations continued in conscientious and unaccustomed quiet. Inauguration Day—January 20—and influenza, however, seriously depleted the ranks of active examinees. On the first clear inauguration day since the inauguration of Harding, President Roosevelt saw a persistence of Democracy despite the onslaught of Dictatorship: "Democracy is not dying. We know it because if we look below the surface, we sense it still spreading on every continent, for it is the most humane, the most advanced, and in the end, the most unconquerable of all forms of human society".

After exams, which ended on the twenty-third, even the ultra-intellectual of us turned authorities on the profound problem of relaxation. Now we had time to keep up with the activities of exuberant Mr. Willkie who arrived in London on the twenty-sixth, almost two weeks after Harry Hopkins' arrival there as the President's official representative. On January 28, the day upper classmen registered for second semester classes, fears for Greece mounted upon the report that General John Metaxes, Premier, died at 11:20 p. m. (Eastern Standard Time) while his soldiers were fighting in Albania. "It is not for myself that I mind; but I place my hope in the Greeks", were the dying Premier's last words. Two days later while many of us were preparing for some one of the President's Birthday Balls, Adolf Hitler was predicting complete Nazi victory over Britain "within a year". We dared to accept the statement with a grain of salt; for last year DER FUEHRER had forecast the same.

"Seventy percent of the citizens of the United States favor aid to Britain" reported the Gallup Poll on February the first. About this time, Miss Moore, our college Registrar, reported that enrollment for the second semester reached approximately 2,250—about eleven shy of the enrollment last year. Honors came swiftly to three persons of our college the week of the second: Miss Anna Scott Hove, of the Physical Education Department, was awarded her official wings; Maurice Glickman, sculptor-lecturer for the exhibit of representative twentieth century art, commented most favorably on an abstract design of a female nude done by Carol Boyd—a primary education major; and Bess Johnson received compliments on her able leadership of the North Carolina Student Conference at College Place Church. Saturday evening, Bertita Harding speaking on "The South American Way" urged that the United States put forth every effort to strengthen our relations with South America: "If the people there are to like us, they must at least know us". The same day, Secretary Knox—unquestionably prompted by Senator Wheeler's declaration that the army lacks a single plane suitable for modern combat—warned that "A sentence spoken or printed might wreck an arsenal, sink a battleship, or destroy the lives of many who are working day and night to make America secure against all enemies, potential or otherwise". The entire week at Woman's College was climaxed by announcement of the completion of a lake and amphitheatre on the old golf course.

On February 11, the day that Russia announced she would not act if the Nazis entered Bulgaria, Kirby Page spoke to us in chapel on "What Are the Chief Weaknesses and Major Enemies of American Democracy". And students joined the faculty in intense disagreement with Mr. Page. Meanwhile as Germans prepared for a blitz-krieg on Bulgaria, Sophomores beseeched the student body to halt its blitz-krieg on the grass. Cave-type lassies spading up the ground around the library, artistic-type lassies tacking up such signs as CAN THAT CAMPUS CUTTING, and snake dances were only a few features of the campaign as Ruth Cash and Ruth Potts phrased it to "Make this campus look like the lawn in front of a florist's home instead of a geometry teacher's nightmare".

"The Greatest Parable of the Old Testament" was the subject of the third University Sermon of the year given on February 16 by Dr. Theodore O. Wedel. Returning from Britain on this same night, Harry Hopkins, a special agent of President Roosevelt, concluded that the British are "desperately in need of help". The report may have hastened the President's appointment two days later of W. Averell Harriman as Defense Expediter for the purpose of coordinating the British aid program in London. But on that eighteenth day of February students at the Woman's College were concerned with little else but their fiftieth birthday. The Fiftieth Anniversary of the signing of the bill which legally founded the State Normal and Industrial College for Women was commemorated by a chapel program in Aycock Auditorium and by a joint session of the State Assembly in the hall of the House of Representatives, Raleigh. Rose Wilson, chairman of the committee for celebration of the event led the chapel program. "Jo" Boet reviewed the academic standards of our college; Caroline White spoke of our democracy, unity, and cooperation; Delice Young, of our social life and our Dean Harriet Elliott; Peggy Dean, of Dean W. C. Jackson; Mary Ann Scott, of our faculty. Climaxing the program was the presentation of flowers by Rose to Mrs. Charles Duncan McIver, wife of the founder, and the singing of our college song. Meanwhile, the State Legislature paused at noon to pay tribute to the Woman's College of the University of North Carolina. Speakers there were Dr. ("Honorable") W. C. Jackson, Dr. Frank Porter Graham, Governor Broughton, Major McLendon, Mrs. C. F. Tomlinson, and Miss Elizabeth Patten. In her speech, "Ibby" stressed our high academic standards, democratic spirit, social atmosphere, faculty, and the whole array of capabilities at our institution. All in all, the speeches proved very valuable, for the following day, the Legislature appropriated an additional $64,730 for Woman's College.

Our expansion and development in numerous fields were more specifically illustrated on the twenty-first when Lamar Stringfield, North Carolina composer, arrived in Greensboro by plane to attend the inauguration of the Young Composers' Club, an organization recently formed on our campus. Not music but the thud of marching boots was the theme of Balkan affairs as Nazi troops were reported pushing into Bulgaria. The following day, a host of us tramped with delight to the third Play-Liker performance of the season, "Kind Lady", only to amble passively and somewhat glumly back to dorm. In Bulgaria, a group of angry students were shouting and demonstrating against the German occupation of their country in vain. And about the time of Mussolini's declaration that "Italy, whatever happens, will march with Germany to the end", we paused to look back over our first semester and offer congratulations to our fellows who had made the Honor Roll.

February drew to a close that was momentous everywhere. On the twenty-fourth, Hitler promised a fierce submarine drive; Earl Browder resigned as General Secretary of the Communist Party in the United States; and Woman's College Seniors became suddenly aware of the winging days when the Alumnae Association entertained them at reception. Special guests of the evening were the Governor and Mrs. J. Melville Broughton. The next day—February 25—nominations for major elections began with students making known their choices in the box at the college post office. Meanwhile, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden conferred with Turkish leaders; British forces captured Mogadiscio, capital of Italian Somaliland; and rioting in Holland resulted in strict Nazi regulations. And as we waited eagerly for the Littlefield Ballet to commence Friday evening, news came that the former King Alfonso XIII of Spain died after fifteen days of agony with ANGINA PECTORIS. He had designated his son, Don Juan, as his successor. But would there be another Spanish throne? Democratic W. C. students looked forward to some day of uni-versal democracy.

March unleashed both ill and good winds on its first day. Ill, in that Bulgaria joined the Rome-Berlin-Tokio axis and thus was the eleventh sovereign state since 1938 to be overrun by Germany. Good, in that the first Modern Dance Symposium ever held in the South was conducted on the Woman's College campus with Edith Goodman acting as chairman of the committee for arrangements and with Miss Jean Brownlee, of the faculty, directing the program of activities for the dancers. The guest dance group represented Duke University, University of North Carolina, Guilford College, St. Mary's, High Point College, Peace, Winthrop College in Rock Hill, S. C., and Limestone College in Gaffney, S. C. Miss Catherine Littlefield, of the Littlefield Ballet, was among the speakers. Two days later, when Moscow announced that Bulgaria's action "does not lead to the consolidation of peace but to the extension of the sphere of war and to Bulgaria being involved in it" and when Turkey along with the rest of the Balkans made final plans for war, classes were begun to instruct us in making bandages for the United States Army camps. This same day saw the election of the following Freshman Class officers: Elizabeth Clay, President; Jean Slaughter, Vice-President; Suzanne Walker, Secretary; Mildred Phillips, Treasurer; and "Teen" Dunlap, Formal Dance Chairman. Nominations for the ten major offices were closed on March 2, Sunday. And on March 6, the CAROLINIAN made history when it came off the presses a day early in order to announce the names and qualifications of those who were to run in the primaries. For the first time in five years a candidate for President of the Student Government Association ran uncontested: Mary Eppes, our "Eppie" was conceded the presidency by the nine other girls nominated in the ballot box. Interest in the election and athletics was sharply divided on the seventh, when during the day we expressed our choice of candidates to run in the finals, and during the evening approximately 1,500 of us turned out for the annual Gym Meet which this year carried out the theme of "Old Glory". The Barkley League composed of North Spencer, "A", "B", and Coit was the winning league and Kirkland, the winning hall. Mary Margaret Binford, Betty Blauvelt, Alice Calder, Martha Charnock, Edna Gibson, Betty Lippman, Annie Mae Parrish, Mary White Thompson, Lora Walters received honors for excelling in Gymnastics. The following night, as we prepared to attend the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, the Senate passed the Lease-Lend Bill by 60-31; the House was to approve only a few amendments and the bill would be signed by the President before the fifteenth.

Campaigning for candidates of the ten major offices waxed hot and furious as the hour of mass meeting drew near. In a speedy session of the Student Legislature, Monday, it was decided that for the first time in the history of the college, the candidates should make a speech for themselves while one person should give the duties and individual qualifications for the candidates of the various offices. On March 12, the very day that over five hundred thousand Nazi troops massed on the Turk and Greek borders, the candidates were presented at the second Mass meeting of the year. From eight in the morning until five in the afternoon on Thursday, Woman's College girls crowded to the polls to choose their major officers. According to custom the winners were announced at supper: Rose Wilson, Vice-President of Student Government; Gladys Sessom, Secretary; Becky Beasley, Treasurer; Elizabeth Sargent, Chief Marshal; Sara Jane Hunter, President of Y.W.C.A.; Dorothy Griffin, President of Athletic Association; Frances Newsom, Editor of CAROLINIAN; Jean Bertram, Editor of CORADDI; and Nancy Ferguson, Editor of PINE NEEDLES. Later in the evening, Sue Murchison was elected President of the rising Senior Class and Julia Pepper, President of the rising Juniors. Not one of them was aware of her responsibility under the democratic election. The students chose them; they were determined not to break a trust.

And when elections come, can the new term be far behind? The days of the Seniors were numbered to seventy-five—seventy-five days in which to crowd seventeen major and final events. At chapel exercises on March 18, seventeen new members of Phi Beta Kappa were presented: Seniors, Betsy Sanders, Helen Parker, Virginia Lee, Dora Oliver, Helen Williams, Alma Brewer, Alice Porter, Jane Gillett, Alice Calder, Bobbie Lee Clegg, Elizabeth Patten, Betty Prevette, and Peggy Hammond; Juniors, Jean Grantham and Mary Lou Mackie; Alumnae, our own Misses Josephine Hege and Katherine Taylor, members of the faculty. Extending congratulations from the Greater University, Dr. Frank Porter Graham declared: "Scholarship is more basic than any battleship, and in this time when the country has given itself totally to organization for defense, it is our business to be the best possible college and total university". The week whirled to a close that Saturday with the Sophomore Formal in Rosenthal Gymnasium and Playliker Production, IV, "Wild Birds" in Aycoc Auditorium. The Student Government tea for the faculty was given Wednesday, the twenty-sixth. And then it was Saturday—Spring Vacation!—time for exodus, number two, which though very sweeping was not as great as that of Christmas.

April and its showers brought the annual Music Festival from the fifteenth to eighteenth. The day after, Seniors fretted over comprehensive exams while Freshmen darted between dormitory and gym making last minute preparation for their first class formal. Three lecturers concluded our lecture entertainment series: Carl Carmer, author of STARS FELL IN ALABAMA, spoke on the evening of the eleventh immediately following formal initiation of new Phi Beta Kappa members. Norman Tarbell came on the twenty-fifth; and Leland Stowe, whose lecture had been scheduled early in the fall, was delayed until the twenty-eighth due to the outbreak of the war in Greece. At last on the evening of April twenty-second came the one thing we had been awaiting the most eagerly—the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Eugene Ormandy. Only four days later, the Juniors feted the Seniors at the traditional Junior-Senior dance.

And the flowers that bloom in May, tra-la, swayed in triple nod on the third when classes were dismissed at ten to observe Sports Day, Parents' Day, and May Day all in one. But since this article went to press March 15, only the May Day phase can be forecast. Gladys Tillett, chairman of the event, announced that the setting would be a small European country where it was the custom to choose a Queen of May. The characters: Queen, Gladys Stedman, in white lace over satin; Regent, Mr. W. R. Taylor; Prince, Mr. T. James Crawford; the two maids of honor, Judy Paschal and Dorothy Bartlett, in blue chiffon; Court, Libby Patten and Helen Morgan, aqua; Bunny Cross and Rama Blackwood, French rose; Bess Johnson and Kathleen Barber, tango; Frances Daniel and Alice Peters, lilac; and Eleanor Echols Mills and Florence Barnes, yellow. All the costumes, which were of 1870 style, were designed by Elizabeth Root.

It was four days later that the Seniors in a traditional ceremony gave up their chapel seats; and Freshmen, Sophomores, and Juniors moved into their future sections at the final Mass Meeting of the year. The Senior Unmusical on the fifteenth was the last little "fling" before Reading Day and exams scheduled from the twenty-third to the thirtieth. In swift succession came the Senior Ball, the fifth production of Playlikers, the Baccalaureate Sermon by Dr. E. McNeill Poteat, Jr., diplomas, and Commencement.

For four hundred and two of us, Commencement in a new world—a world different from anything anyone had ever known. But if we knew ours would be difficult roles in a difficult scene, we also knew ours was to be a democratic way, "the most unconquerable of all forms of human society".

LAST WORDS OF THE EDITOR

Being a woman, I must have the last word . . . It's with mingled emotions that we complete the 1941 PINE NEEDLES: we are sad because we are at the end of a very pleasant experience; we are happy because we can now come out of hibernation from our den (P. N. Office) and find out how the rest of the world is living.

We've had nightmares about the book coming out printed in invisible ink. We've thought at times maybe it wouldn't even come out.

We've made mistakes—plenty of them. All complaints can be mailed to Alaska; we're getting away from it all. If you don't have the price of a stamp, just tell next year's editor; she may profit by them.

We do hope that we've given an annual to you that you will like . . . anyway, we've tried.

THE EDITOR.
